Rule For Detroit Students -- No Shots, No Schooling

DETROIT (AP) — As many as 6,000 students may have been turned away from city schools this morning because they could not prove they had the required immunizations, health officials say.

Dr. William Clexton, city health director, said he had no precise count of youngsters sent home because they could not show they had been immunized against measles, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

"It's very difficult to gather a figure since 200 schools are involved," Clexton said. "If I had to make a guess I'd say about half of those who received letters are being excluded."

As of two weeks ago, 12,000 students had failed to show proof they had been vaccinated, school officials said. Their parents were sent warning letters.

The public schools enroll about 165,000 students.

Clexton said about 1,500 students had received shots at public health clinics since last week. An unknown number of other youngsters have been vaccinated by private physicians.

At the Butzel clinic in East Detroit, "there's been a steady stream" of youngsters getting shots today, a supervisor said. More than 100 children, including 5-year-old Alfred McCaskill, had filed through the line in the first half hour the clinic was open.

"I had an appointment to come in today anyway," said Alfred's mother, Verma. "There are so many diseases going around and I think kids should have their shots."

Mrs. Lavinia Wingo, principal of Jamieson Elementary School in Northwest Detroit, said about nine youngsters were turned away from school this morning because they didn't have proof of vaccination. "I think sometimes they have to go through the shock of actually being excluded before they realize we have to have them immunized," she said.

It is the second year in a row Detroit school officials have barred children without immunization from attending classes. Last year some 20,000 children missed the deadline and were kept out of school until they got their shots.

"We were very successful last year," said Joan Chaisson, coordinator of the school immunization program. "We immediately saw measles go down to zero."

Under Michigan law, students must be vaccinated for a variety of diseases, but if parents object, for strong personal or religious reasons, school officials may waive the requirement.

Thousands of students faced being sent home from school today unless they can provide proof of immunizations. Washington Welcomes Humphrey Back To Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president and the vice president of the United States stood back, all but ignored, while the senior senator from Minnesota waded into the welcoming crowd to shake hands.

Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale didn't seem to mind. The people and the smiles at Andrews Air Force Base on Sunday were for Hubert H. Humphrey, back in the capital for the first time since Aug. 18, when doctors determined his cancer was inoperable.

Getting back to work, Humphrey said, would be good therapy. And he said he was ready "to raise as much hell as I can."

Humphrey will walk into the Senate chamber at 2 p.m. Tuesday to be welcomed back by his colleagues. Carter said, "I figure we'll be ready to adjourn in about a week with Sen. Humphrey on the job."

The senator, 86, appeared gaunt and he walked with a halt. But the smile was as broad as ever.

Carter had stopped in Minneapolis as he returned from a 24-day cross-country tour to bring Humphrey to Washington aboard Air Force One.

"I am happy to report to you that I do feel so much better," Humphrey said. "Everything, of course, is relative. I'm not quite as good as I was when I was 50, but I am doing mighty good considering what we have been through. Getting back to Washington is going to be good therapy. That is what my doctors have told me."

Carter's praise for the man who failed three times to be elected president could hardly have been more effusive.

"This is one of the great days in my life to be able to come back to Minnesota to join with the greatest American that I know, the No. 1 Democrat in our country, and a man who has been admitted and is admired throughout the world," the President said in Minneapolis.

More than 1,000 who had gathered to see Humphrey off cheered and a lot of eyes misted over.

Panama Voters Give Canal Pact Big Okay

By ANNE ZUSY

Associated Press Writer

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A big turnout of Panamanian voters gave the new Panama Canal treaties overwhelming approval, unofficial returns from the nationwide referendum showed today.

The election tribunal reported 140,178 yes votes to 70,311 no votes cast Sunday in 810 of the 3,088 voting districts. This was nearly 30 per cent of the estimated 800,000 eligible voters.

Election officials said most of these votes were cast in Panama province, including Panama City, the seat of much of the opposition to the treaties. Government officials predicted returns from the provinces would raise the total in favor of the pacts to 70 or 75 per cent.

The final official count is to be announced Thursday.

Panama's chief of government, Gen. Omar Torrijos, predicted the U.S. Senate would also ratify the treaties despite the strong opposition in the United States.

Torrijos said the senators must realize the treaties "go beyond their electoral districts. They're playing with the luck of maritime navigation all over the world."

"It's the senators who have to explain to the people, not the people who have to explain to the senators," he added in an interview.

Torrijos voted in the morning and then toured Panama City in a military truck loaded with reporters. Cheering crowds welcomed him everywhere, and his shirt collar was red with lipstick by the time he returned home.

There were no reports of opposition activity during the voting Sunday. A number of rallies had been held in the week before, and opponents of the treaties claimed the plebiscite was fixed. Torrijos denied the charge, and invited three dozen foreign observers to check on the voting.

Everyone 18 and over was eligible to vote. Those voting were fingerprinted, required to present identification cards which were punched, and their thumbs were inked.

The tribunal said the voter turnout was massive, and that there were no confirmed reports of voting irregularities or violence. But a U.S. television network filmed one man, Juan Carlo Viala Perera, who said he voted twice and then informed election officials to prove that fraud was possible. A spokesman for the election tribunal said the incident was being investigated.

The voters appeared to be in a happy holiday mood as they waited in line to vote.

Restaurant Puts Wrong 'Salt' On French Fries

PORTAGE, Mich. (AP) — Police today were trying to track down patrons of a local fast-food restaurant who may have eaten a corrosive chemical along with their french fries.

The chemical, an alkali cleaning compound, was mistaken for salt and sprinkled on the fries at Arby's Roast Beef in Portage between 8 and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, police said.

The mix-up was discovered after some restaurant patrons complained of a burning sensation in their mouths and throats, according to police.

At least one person reportedly was treated for minor mouth burns at a local hospital after eating the contaminated fries.

Neither police nor hospital officials could pinpoint the exact chemicals present in the compound, but they said it was a common alkali used for cleaning restaurant grills.

People who ate fries at the restaurant during the 1½-hour period were urged to immediately contact their doctors or the Bronson Hospital poison control center in nearby Kalamazoo.

Bronson hospital reported that two people, Mark Revella, 25, and Carla McNamee, 18, both of Kalamazoo, were advised and discharged from the hospital's poison control center. Portage police said Miss McNamee was an employee of the restaurant.

Portage police said they have been unable to determine just how many people might have eaten the French fries during the 1½-hour period.

A check of emergency rooms at Lake View Community Hospital, Paw Paw; Community Hospital, Waterford; Mercy Hospital, Benton Harbor; and Memorial Hospital, St. Joseph, reported no one was treated for any disorder linked to the restaurant's French fries.

In the meantime, a spokeswoman at the poison center said, anyone noticing a burning sensation in their mouth or throat should drink milk or milk of magnesia to alleviate the burning.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Carter Insists Upon Stumbling Instead Of Walking

Jimmy Carter campaigned heavily a year ago on the theme of the federal government being a bureaucratic morass into which the American citizenry was fast sinking beyond recall. His solution was the twofold idea of making government not only more accessible to the man in the street but totally understandable and acceptable. This thought, plus the Watergate syndrome hanging around Jerry Ford, propelled him to the White House. Nine months on the job finds Jimmy miles away from implementing the promise and what is more worrisome to a politician, slipping in public esteem. The latest opinion polls show Carter enjoys substantial approbation for being a well-intentioned man but far down the totem pole for job performance. His outburst of last week against the oil companies stems from his frustration with more than the energy problem. It runs to the entire economic situation. His televised tirade against the oil companies failed in its intended purpose to conceal from the public the abysmal fact that his Administration has yet to come to grips with the energy dilemma. The concept of taxing consumption of energy as a means of conserving it instead of looking into new sources of power is phony on its face. Except for a few devoted Carter followers in Congress, our Representatives and Senators understand this. So does the man in the street whose pocketbook would be shredded if the Carter plan

Another Way To Waste Money

Some studies reveal more about those who conduct them than they do about the subject studied. One of the favorite pastimes within a bureaucracy is to institute a study. A congressional subcommittee decided the thing to study was television violence. It required three months of study spread over several states — at who knows what cost — to conclude the public shares the blame with the networks. Even a six-year-old looking at a set could have told them who it is who controls the knobs.

Some Carter Aides Fly High And Handsome

One of the most rewarding traits of good leadership is setting a good example. The leader who follows the same rules he promulgates for subor-diates will gain considerably more respect from associates and superiors than the one whose motto is, don't do as I do, do as I say. In politics and other forums of public service, this trait is frequently abused. Small wonder that the public sometimes expresses a low opinion of its leaders. A study of air transportation expenses by officials of the Carter administration provides interesting contrasts. Some departments and individuals consistently fly economy class on commercial airliners. Others just as consistently fly first class. A few frequently press government-owned planes into service even though commercial flights are available, thereby considerably increasing travel costs. One of the worst records of any agency is that of the World Bank. Officials of the agency which administers a $40 billion loan fund for underdeveloped countries, with the United States the largest contributor, not only fly first class but frequently make use of the Concorde on trips to London. A seat on that plane is more than twice as expensive as a coach seat on other jets. With government travel expenses now up to $2.7 billion annually, there are taxpayer funds to be saved and examples to be set by officials not completely out of touch with the working stiffs who pay the bill.

BENTON HARBOR RULE IS RAPED
Editor,
What a rotten rule it is in Benton Harbor to protect the criminal. I'm talking about the rule that helps to keep the police from taking the criminal when the police sees him in the act. Like when the patrolman shot the man in his leg because he wouldn't stop. Someone put in the Herald-Palladium that the police was trying to take the law in their own hand and said the police was trying to be the court and the judge, too. What I would like to know is, how in the wide world can the judge try the criminal in court if the police are not allowed to take the criminal in to the judge? And, incidentally, all the man would have had to do to keep from getting shot would have been to stop when the police told him to. Oh well, I know, some people think the police are just asking too much when he asks the criminal to stop for arrest. If I were the police of today, I would tell those people to handle it all by themselves, and that includes all lawmakers. I mean if I were all of the armed forces of the United States, I would tell the federal authorities and lawmakers that the criminals could help themselves to the federal authorities and the lawmakers or change the law to protect the law abiding citizen instead of protecting the criminal.

A New Look At Georgia Banking

WASHINGTON — Perhaps Bert Lance was right. Maybe we Yankees just don't understand how bankers do business in Georgia. That tentative confession is inspired by the recent disclosure of a highly disturbing set of circumstances involving three Georgia banks, including the second-biggest in the state. Lance is not personally involved in this episode. But the embarrassing revelations which led to his resignation under fire as Director of the Office of Management and Budget did produce a commitment from several congressional committees to re-examine the laws governing bank regulation. If Lance's legacy is to be a tightening of those statutes, there is no more suitable place for the legislators to begin looking than the First National Bank of Atlanta and its parent company, the First National Holding Corp. The Bank Holding Company Act, a federal statute, has long required that a holding company which seeks to acquire control of additional banks must first secure the approval of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. Back in 1969-70, the Atlanta bank found a way to circumvent that law as well as a Georgia statute which flatly prohibited any holding company in the state from controlling more than one bank. In March, 1969, a $2.7 million interest-free loan from the Atlanta bank enabled one man to purchase virtually all of the common stock of the First Bank of Savannah, 250 miles southeast in Savannah, Ga. In April 1970, slightly more than a year later, both the Savannah bank shares and the loan were transferred to Ben S. Gilmer, who happened to be the former chairman of the executive committee of the Atlanta bank's board of directors. The unusual loan was structured so Gilmer assumed no personal liability for the debt. In addition, Gilmer's interest payments were exactly equal to the dividends paid by the Savannah bank stock. Involved in a virtually identical case was the First National Bank of Dalton, 80 miles northwest in Dalton, Ga., a community not far from Lance's home town of Calhoun, Ga. In January, 1969, four percent and former directors of the Atlanta bank signed an agreement to buy shares in the Dalton bank from a trust established by major stockholders of the smaller bank. The exceptionally favorable financial arrangements were similar to those in Savannah. The Atlanta directors received large loans from their bank, enabling them to purchase 39 percent of the outstanding Dalton bank stock between 1969 and 1976. Officers of the Atlanta bank have served on the boards of both the Savannah and Dalton banks. The current president of the Savannah bank and his immediate predecessor both came to that job from officerships at the Atlanta bank. The Atlanta bank also orchestrated similar arrangements for the purchase of large blocks of stock in four other small banks, all in DeKalb County, part of the Atlanta metropolitan area. But when the office of the Comptroller of the Currency became concerned in 1970 about possible violations of the law, an attorney for the Atlanta bank assured that federal agency that "in our opinion, there is no 'control' of those banks."

Marriage Means

Georgia Politics Tempting Lance

WASHINGTON — Acquaintances of former Office of Management and Budget chief Bert Lance say he is so buoyed by friendly receptions since he left the capital he may even run for governor of Georgia to seek vindication. From a national perspective, that seems like an incredible idea. He is not going to be recorded in history as one of the good guys. Georgia politicians, however, say there is a great deal of sympathy in the state for a local boy who fought back at Northern Yankee Washington when he was under attack. Lance has tried to encourage such sentiment by making public appearances tooting his own horn. Some practical problems may plague a Lance comeback, however. He would have to tackle an incumbent Democratic governor, George Busby, who beat Lance for the job only three years ago and who is eligible next year for a second term. He may have some problems raising money, since the method he used to finance his first try — with huge loans to himself and his relatives from the bank he controlled — is unlikely to be available to him this time. Oh, well, so long as it remains a political pipedream, it's free. Meanwhile, back here in mean old Washington, life goes on. Insiders are betting that the Democratic party will pick Seattle for the site of its midterm conference next winter, after the November congressional elections are safely out of the way. Three other cities are still officially in the running. But Honolulu is considered too expensive, since it is so far away from all states but those on the West Coast. Denver is not a White House favorite, because local Democratic politics are considered too kooky for reliable arrangements. And Memphis happens to be in the South; Carter is believed to want the 1980 convention, at which he will presumably be renominated, to be held in the South. Taking the party south twice in two years would represent too much of a regional tilt. + + + Which the feud between Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., and Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., for future fireworkers. Brooks, chairman of the Government Operations Committee, vigorously opposed the House administrative reforms proposed by Obey in a recent Democratic caucus. Obey responded by snapping that Brooks had forgotten to mention that the changes would take away Brooks' committee patronage — one thing, said Obey, that Brooks had said privately he opposed. In truth, the opposite is true. Brooks told Obey in a private meeting that he didn't mind losing the patronage, which was a headache, but would like to keep the authority to supervise studies of office efficiency, since he already had an expert staff assembled for that purpose. Brooks has a reputation for a long memory. This story isn't over yet. + + + Democratic senators average 87.08 percent voting attendance so far this session, while Republican senators averaged 85.43. That's not perfect, but it's not bad. + + +

No Contest Plea Filed In Car Death

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Mrs. Frances Laity pleaded no contest Friday in Berrien Circuit Court to a charge of negligent homicide involving the death last year of a Benton Harbor girl who was struck by a car.

Mrs. Laity, 77, a socially-prominent Benton Harbor woman and wife of retired Berrien District Court Judge Harry Laity, entered her plea before a visiting judge from Lenawee County during her

Mrs. Laity Awaiting Sentence

pre-trial hearing Friday.

Her attorney, George Keller, said "Mrs. Laity at no time ever sought any special privileges in this case."

Because of her status in the community, "we determined very early that we'd never seek any plea bargain or any special favors," said Keller.

Berrien County judges and the Berrien prosecutor's office had disqualified themselves in the case.

Mrs. Laity was accused of driving the car that struck Wanda Davis, 12, at the intersection of Colfax and Empire avenues, Benton Harbor, the afternoon of Nov. 15, 1976. Wanda, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Davis, 847 Pearl St., Benton Harbor, died about 3½ hours after the accident in Mercy Hospital, police reported.

Mrs. Laity testified during her preliminary hearing in Berrien District Court that she was on her way to the beauty shop when she drove through the intersection. The beeping of a car horn stopped her several blocks from the accident, and she said a man got out of his car and said she'd run over a child.

The man's statement was the first indication she had that there had been an accident, she testified.

Earlier in Circuit Court Mrs. Laity stood mute to the charge, Keller said, and the court entered an innocent plea.

Explaining the change in plea Friday, Keller said: "The testimony of others indicated that at some point in time her car did strike the child, and she (Mrs. Laity) decided to go with that" and plead no contest.

A plea of no contest means that a conviction can be entered on the record. But unlike a guilty plea, a no contest plea cannot be used as an admission in any other matter.

Probate Court Judge C. Ralph Kahn, of Lenawee County, will sentence Mrs. Laity after a presentence investigation is completed, Keller said. Kahn was assigned to hear the case by the state supreme court administrator.

Kalamazoo County prosecutors handled the case, according to Berrien Chief Assistant Prosecutor Jeffrey Lang, Assistant Kalamazoo County Prosecutor John Kneas was present Friday when Mrs. Laity changed her plea, Lang said.

Mrs. Laity, who remains free on personal recognizance bond, faces a maximum sentence of two years' confinement, Keller said.

Judge and Mrs. Laity were named defendants in a Berrien Circuit Court civil suit filed recently on behalf of Jessie Mae Davis, administratrix of the Wanda Davis estate. The suit seeks any amount of damages over $10,000. It claims that negligence by Mrs. Laity caused Wanda's death.

Fire Is Found In School Bus

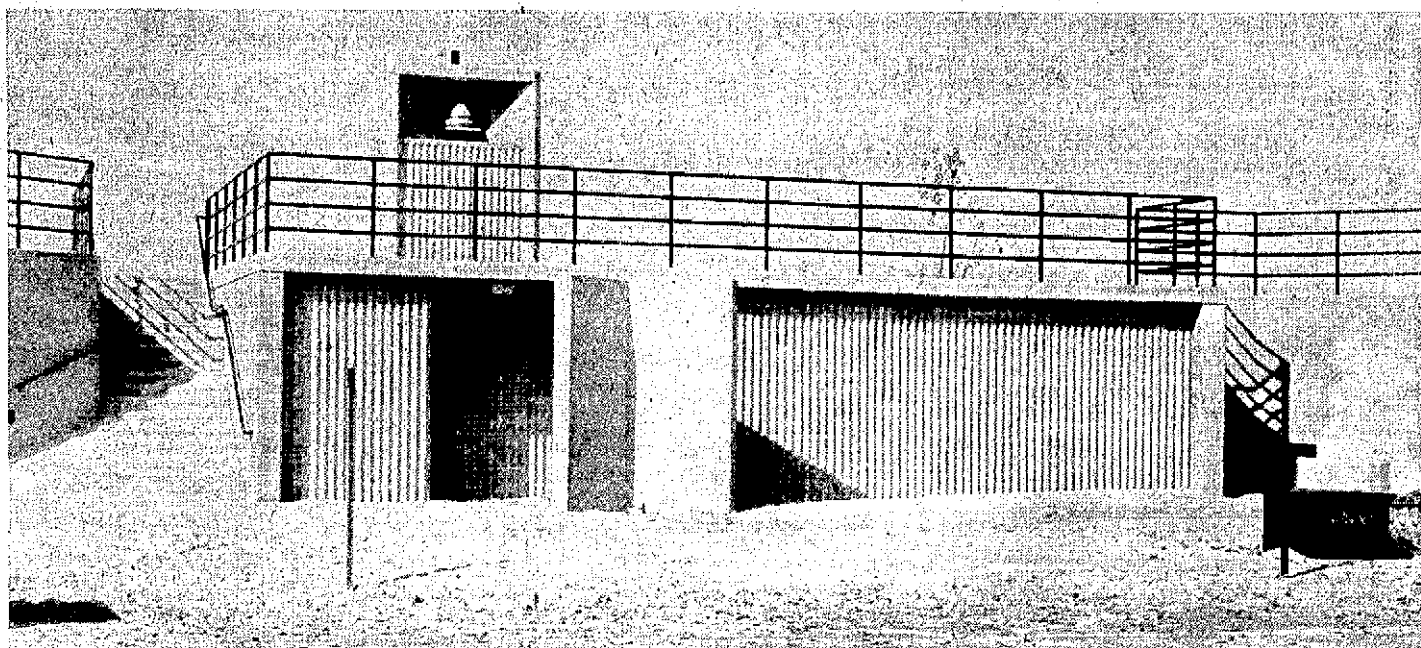

A Berrien Sheriff's officer who smelled smoke while on routine patrol behind Lakeshore High School early today found a piece of smoldering cardboard inside a school bus parked there.

Lt. David Tiefenbach reported he was driving through a parking lot on the south side of the school, at Cleveland Avenue and John Boers Road, Lincoln Township, at 2:37 a.m. when he discovered what appeared to be a burning cardboard box on the floor of the bus.

Tiefenbach said he removed the box from the bus and extinguished the rest of the smoldering material with his foot. The Lakeshore School District bus was not damaged, he said.

The officer reported it appeared the box had been placed inside the rear door of the bus a short time before he discovered it.

Chamber Legislative Trip Scheduled Nov. 9

The Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce has scheduled its annual legislative trip to Lansing for Nov. 9, according to a chamber spokesman. The conference, to be attended by chamber members from across the state, will focus on possible abuses of workers' and unemployment compensation, according to the chamber. Gov. William Milliken will be the main speaker at a luncheon in Lansing. Other speakers include John Wisner, chairman of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce; Theodore Downing, president of the state chamber executives; and James Barrett, state chamber president. A panel of business leaders will interview key legislators during a session moderated by Barrett. Cost of the day-long affair will be about $40. A charter bus will leave the Sears parking lot at 7:30 a.m. Registration in Lansing is at 9 a.m. The session is open to chamber members and any other interested people. Reservation information is available from David Luetz, chamber legislative director.

School Will Prosecute Protest Vandals

Any students suspected of vandalism last week at St. Joseph High School will be prosecuted to the limit of the law, Principal Richard Higgs declared today.

"We think it's students," Higgs said of vandals that included breaking windows and setting off a fire alarm during an afternoon disturbance and chopping down a 50-foot spruce tree Thursday night.

"We don't know who did it yet, but I think we have hope of finding out. If we do, we will prosecute — no question about that. That was a valuable tree." Higgs also announced that the school is offering a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest of the person or persons who cut the tree.

The spruce, valued at $1,000 by St. Joseph forestry workers, was found chopped down Friday morning in a wooded area north of the school known as "smoker's corner."

The clearing of brush and small trees from this same area as part of a beautification project was the target of a student protest that grew into Thursday's disturbance.

During the disturbance, two school windows were broken, a wall plate was broken to set off a fire alarm in the school and several police cars were kicked.

An estimated 300-400 of the school's 1,400 students reportedly were involved in the demonstration and Higgs said school officials were verifying attendance records today to determine which students were not in class.

He said he planned to send a letter to the parents of every student who missed class during the time of the demonstration inviting them to an evening meeting at which the entire situation would be discussed, including disciplinary action.

"I haven't received a single call from a single parent," he said. "I suspect there are a few worried parents out there."

Higgs said school officials have "a few leads" and would be meeting with detectives from the St. Joseph Police Department today to coordinate the investigation.

Valuable Tree Chopped Down In Wake Of SJ Disturbance

"I think we're going to uncover some kids before this week is out," he said.

The only reported arrest from the demonstration so far is a 14-year-old girl who has been petitioned into juvenile court.

St. Joseph police Chief William Mihalik said his department was pressing investigation of the vandalism and said he believes the cutting of the spruce is linked to the earlier disturbance.

He said that probably no more than 25 students were leaders in the disturbance and added that they've all been in the police station before.

The felled spruce tree was reported by Patrolman Max Kelschull to be 50 feet tall and 12 inches in diameter.

Kelschull said the $1,000 value estimate was made by Allan Thar, supervisor of the city's forestry department.

Kelschull said the tree was cut down with a hatchet, apparently late Thursday night or early Friday morning. Police were notified at 7 a.m. Friday.

by Robert Smith, a night custodian at the school, who saw it lying on the ground. The report was released Sunday.

Thursday's incident began at 11:05 a.m. when someone set off a fire alarm that emptied the school. Police were called at 11:23 a.m. by James Talbot, director of public works who radioed that students were dragging tree limbs and brush onto Lake View Avenue, blocking traffic. Chief Mihalik earlier said Talbot was going to the school to check on a campus beautification project, consisting of thinning out the wooded area north of the school building. Work reportedly has stopped.

The girl arrested is accused of trying to grab the hat of Patrolman Kelschull and running away when protestors opened a door of a patrol car in which she was placed. She was apprehended soon afterward.

During the disturbance, St. Joseph police were assisted at the request of Mihalik by officers from five other Twin Cities area police departments.

VANDALS FELL ST. JOE SPRUCE: St. Joseph police blame vandals for chopping down this 50-foot spruce tree in wooded area known as "smoker's corner" off Lake View Boulevard at north end of senior high school. The tree, which measures 12 inches in diameter, is valued at about $1,000. Vandalism is believed linked to disturbance at the high school last Thursday stemming from protest against cutting small trees and brush in the area. (Staff photos)

Be Creative With Halloween Treats

Tricksters and treaters don't have to be "junk food junkies," says Maryann Beckman, district extension consumer marketing information agent.

Halloween treats can be fun as well as nutritious.

Simple, as well as easy to prepare, treats are the best choices. Apples, cereal cookies, popcorn balls, cheese, fresh fruit, peanuts, raisins and fruit juice punches, either or flavored bulk are all popular choices that are also "good for the kids."

If you want to "be creative" with some of these treats, try something different, such as cheese pumpkins. Simply let shredded Cheddar cheese come to room temperature before mixing. Then beat it until smooth, add about one tablespoon milk for each five ounces of cheese. Mix until well blended and then shape into small balls. Press ridges in the sides to simulate the pumpkin and attach a whole clove at the top for the stem. Easy to do and they'll be a sure hit with the trick or treaters.

If you plan to bake up a storm for those ghosts and goblins who appear at your door, try cookies that are made with pumpkin, grated carrots, raisins, nutmeg, nuts or peanut butter. Cereal cookies or even candles are also better choices than many other kinds of cookies or candy.

If you must give candy, look for the kind of candy bars that contain nuts, peanuts, or raisins. These at least give some protein and iron for health. Little packets of peanuts, raisins, chocolate-coated nuts or raisins, small boxes of cereals and the relatively new individually-wrapped cheese kisses are other good nutritious treats.

Don't forget the pumpkin seeds after you've carved that Jack-o-Lantern. They're a good snack for children as well as adults and are easy to prepare.

Wash the seeds first and remove the stringy fiber. Prepare them dry-roasted, oil-roasted or par-baked and roasted. The same procedures may be used for sunflower seeds.

To dry roast, spread seeds in a single layer on a cookie sheet or other shallow tray. Bake in a 350 or other similar tray for 10 to 15 minutes. When seeds begin to swell and the seed coats crack they're ready to eat. Salt to taste.

For oil-roasted seeds, use a pan about an inch deep. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place seeds in a single layer and cover with oil. Bake 10 to 15 minutes. Seeds will pop almost like popcorn but kernels won't enlarge as much. Drain excess oil and salt to taste.

To pre-salt seeds, soak at the rate of four cups of seeds to one-fourth cup salt in one gallon of water. Soak overnight, drain and spread to dry. For each two cups of seeds, coat a baking sheet with two tablespoons salad oil. Add seeds and sprinkle with two teaspoons salt. Bake in a preheated 400 degree oven for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Drain on paper towels and serve when cool. If you plan to store them, dry overnight and then store in airtight containers.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Hubby's A 'Food Inspector'

Dear Ann Landers: I need help with a problem involving my husband. He is a food inspector. This is not his profession — it's his neurosis.

He loves homemade bread and biscuits and I bake almost every day. He examines every slice of bread and every biscuit for "mold." Before he will touch his salad he goes over the lettuce with a magnifying glass — looking for "worms." He stirs his coffee several times to see if there is a fly or a snail in it.

Whenever I serve fish he sniffens it and usually asks for fried eggs instead because "the fish doesn't smell right." I keep telling him fish smells like fish. He replies, "Some fish smells more like fish than other fish."

It's bad enough that he does this at home but when we go to mother's house for dinner he acts the same way. Although Mom has never said anything, I know it upsets her. What can I do about it? — Alpena, Mich.

Dear Alpena: It is impossible to do anything about someone else's neurosis. You can, however, do something about your reaction to it. Tell yourself it's HIS problem and his squirrely behavior. In no way reflects on you.

Explain to Sherlock that you don't mind when he inspects the food at home but when he does it elsewhere it can be unbecomingly to the hostess. She has no way of knowing if he has found something — or if he is only looking.

ANN LANDERS

Kid Killers

Dear Ann Landers: Twice in the last month we admitted to our acute care unit young children who had visited their grandmothers. In both instances, the grandmother had been using a common red liquid furniture polish in an effort to avoid the safety cap on the original container, they transferred the polish into a soda pop bottle.

Toddlers assume that any sweet-smelling red liquid in a pop bottle is meant for drinking. In the past five years we have treated 12 children who drank this same furniture polish and two of them died.

Please, Ann Landers, tell your readers that safety caps were placed on certain products because they are frequent killers of children. I hope every mother who reads your column will ask herself, "How could I deal with the guilt and heartache if my child died because I was thoughtless and negligent?" — D.R.O., M.D., Asst. Prof. Pediatrics at Duke U. Med School

Dear Prof: Thanks for a letter that should jolt a few million mamas out of their lethargy. And please say hello to Dr. Jay Aronson down here at Duke. He's been one of my star pediatric consultants for several years.

Wrong To Fink

Dear Ann Landers: Mom has a part-time job. She keeps her extra money for family gifts in a mayonnaise jar on a high shelf. Last week my 15-year-old sister got into the jar and took $12 to buy a blouse that was on sale. She plans to pay it back out of her allowance — a couple dollars at a time. Mom hasn't missed the money yet but she might. My conscience bothers me. Should I tell? — Little Sis

Dear Sis: You've done nothing wrong so there is nothing to feel guilty about. Finking is wrong, so keep quiet. If you feel like talking I suggest you tell your mom that keeping money in a mayonnaise jar makes about as much sense as keeping mayonnaise in a bank.

Don't think your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

For Dieters

Snacking and dieting seldom go hand in hand. But, if three meals a day just isn't enough for you, keep hard-boiled eggs on hand in the refrigerator.

For a price of only 82 calories, a large egg will provide lots of high-quality protein and an impressive assortment of vitamins and minerals.

Football Emotions

I have just read that an American football game is an "emotional high."

I wouldn't have put it in quite that way. In fact, I have experienced greater "emotional highs" getting a piece of dental floss caught in my teeth.

Psychologically speaking, men have a lot of reasons for enjoying a football game. They act out their repressions, live vicariously through their heroes, experience renewal and feel like "one of the gang."

To me, it's a two-and-a-half hour sedative. The way I see it, a football stadium is the one spot left in the world where a fan can enjoy diplomatic immunity from (a) being arrested for being drunk and disorderly (b) charged for making obscene calls to the players and coaches and (c) committed to a hospital for standing on a seat in the driving rain, waving a thermos in the air and shouting, "You're getting on my nerves, Ricky!"

Happily, I have learned to busy myself at games and try to have a good time in spite of all the noise and those little knee-grabbers running up and down the field. Among some of my more provocative games are:

The Fashion Alphabet: Two women alternate with naming a style worn by another woman in the stands from Accordion pleats and Blouses to Yokes and Zippers. The first woman who can't come up with a style for the letter has to be penalized by watching the game until a first down is made.

The Hot Dog, Cola, Capers: Disguising your voice, you yell down the vendor at the end of the row. Without an eye leaving the game, people will pass it down an entire row of 138 people. When it gets to the end, pass it back to the next row and see how many rows that hot dog and cola will cover.

Restroom Invention: Using strategy, experience, and perseverance, see if you can effectively get a play to work that actually gets you into the restroom before the game is over.

Stump The Fans In The Stands: Establish a pool of what it is the band is trying to spell out on the playing field. (I once correctly identified a tuba player as an anchovy on a field of pizza and won $8.)

Woman's Intolerance to Football: Is not going to kill the game. Football... like head colds and Doris Day will be with us forever.

But an emotional high? As I told my husband when he announced the game was going into overtime and I began to cry, "This is as emotional as I get!"

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 50 years old and feel just great. However, I was in a department store last week and had my blood pressure taken for a dollar. The attendant said it was just a little high. I live on a pension and cannot afford to go to a doctor all the time to have this problem checked.

Can you tell me what I can do daily to keep my blood pressure down as I get older?

DEAR READER — A single blood pressure measurement is not a very good index of what your pressure usually is. That is why doctors often take several determinations if the reading is high. So don't put too much faith in that one reading which was "just a little high." For mildly elevated blood pressure the best treatment is, often weight control, exercise and limiting salt intake. That may solve the problem for many.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have my cholesterol down from 325 to 225, but I have been told that I have bad circulation in my legs and they ache every morning. Is there anything I can do to reduce the hardening in my arteries?

DEAR READER — Your description of your legs aching in the morning bothers me. Leg pains from poor circulation are more apt to occur with exertion, although it is true that in some disorders of circulation muscle cramps can occur without exertion. If you can walk and exert yourself normally I would think that it is less likely that your aching legs are due to poor circulation.

I am not disagreeing with your doctor's statement that you have poor circulation but perhaps your interpretation that this causes your morning leg aches is not correct. You might ask him if you can see a specialist in orthopedics, to evaluate your leg discomfort.

It sounds like you are on the right track in decreasing your tendency to atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries). It is important to keep your cholesterol level down. That is usually accomplished by diet and exercise. There are medicines that will help in some cases if this fails to do the trick.

Keep your weight down, don't smoke, stick to a proper lowfat, low cholesterol diet and, if your legs permit, try to build up your exercise program through walking.

If you do not already exercise a bit start walking every day until you can walk about three miles a day which need not be all at one time. The more you can build up your exercise the better off you will be assuming you are not planning on becoming a marathon runner or plan to go to extremes.

Get rid of any fat that you have under your skin. Your exercise will help there. And cut down or eliminate salt. If you have to have it you might do well with Morton's Lite-Salt preparation since it contains only half as much sodium, but don't go overboard on it either.

I presume you don't smoke but if you do stop at once. To give you a better understanding of what controls your blood pressure I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8. Blood Pressure. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10018.

Your Birthday

Creative and artistic ventures are favored for you this coming year. Follow your urges along these lines and they could open up new vistas for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone may try to set a snare for you in an important matter today. To escape the trap, call on your experience and keep your wits about you. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A drone today may try to get his share of the honey you've worked hard to accumulate. Do your best to keep him out of your hive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pressing your mate to emulate someone else would be a mistake today. He or she wouldn't fit another's mold any more than you would.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Though you get along well with most people today, avoid those with whom you've had trouble in the past. They could cause some problems.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're better at handling finances today than yesterday, and you could accumulate a few bucks. Caution: Don't let any bills become past due.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A good sense of humor and a philosophical outlook are your big attributes today. This is excellent — you may have some abrasive types to deal with!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If there's something you're doing that hasn't produced the desired results, get off it now. You can find better ways to deal with the situation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Follow your better judgment and your instincts today. Going against either will create chaos rather than order and accomplishment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may do something that's a departure from your usual method today. It's a bit of a gamble, but it's a good actor you can pull it off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't close your mind today, even though you're creative and imaginative yourself. Others could contribute something to embellish your ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be patient in business involvements today. Conditions that surround them are good, but you could lose out by wanting your payday right now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Tolerance with others career-wise is a must for you today. You could judge them a little too hastily and too harshly.

Barry is a really great player and may well be the best match-point player in the world, but his record in major knockout competition does not show that he has ever been the winner or runner-up in either the Vanderbilt or the Spingold. Devaluation Lures Yanks To Canada

DETROIT (AP) — Thousands of American shoppers are pouring across the Detroit River, lured by bargains created by the falling value of the Canadian dollar. But not all merchants are cooperating.

Posters in shop windows in Windsor, Ontario, proclaim "U.S. dollar is Worth $1.10 Canadian," and "Buy Now with American Dollars and Save."

Last week, the Canadian dollar slipped to 90 U.S. cents, a 40-year low, and traffic into Windsor is swelled daily by bargain hunters seeking to take advantage of the situation while it lasts.

However, many stores are refusing to give American customers full premium on their money.

The Windsor Chamber of Commerce has been trying to encourage merchants to pay the full discount rate, but a spokesman says only about half of them comply.

Bob Richardson, general manager, said the chamber would like to see Americans come over and spend their money, but many store operators who did not discount the U.S. dollar when it was worth less than Canadian currency are now refusing to devalue

SHIPPERS WITHDRAW

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — The withdrawal of New York shipping interests from talks aimed at settling a 24-day dock strike could speed agreement with longshoremen, observers say. Another round of bargaining is scheduled here today.

Canadian money by the full amount.

Some stores which cater to American trade report a substantial increase in business.

Since the beginning of October, said Eli Goldin of Lazare's Furs, the number of U.S. customers seeking bargains in mink coats and similar garments has more than doubled.

A few blocks from the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, the owner of a store specializing in jewelry and china said he expects "a tremendous increase in U.S.

business."

In addition to the 10 percent currency discount, Americans who buy such items as Waterford crystal and Wedgwood china get a price break on goods manufactured in the British Empire and can beat stateside prices by as much as one-third, according to Jack Shanfield, owner of Shanfield Meyers Jewelry and China shop.

Some shoppers are finding, however, that their bargains are not such money-savers after all when they stop at U.S. Customs on the way back.

Sometimes they have to pay so much duty on their purchases that they might have been better off shopping at home.

'Keep Out The Grease,' Says World Chili Champ

ROSAMOND, Calif. (AP) — One pot of chili was called "Indian's Revenge," and another was said to have medicinal powers. But the Las Vegas resident who simmered up the winning concoction at the 11th World Championship Chili Cook-off was a rank amateur who simply stuck to basics. "I have no secret ingredients," said Jay Pennington, who was crowned 1977 world chili champ Sunday before an overflow crowd of 35,000 at the Tropicana gold mining camp, a Mojave Desert ghost town. "I use good meat and keep out the grease." The award-winning batch of "Jay's Good Ol' Chili" was the sixth ever cooked by Pennington. His first won a Las Vegas Kiwanis chili cooking contest, and his second clinched him the Nevada state chili cooking championship. Pennington beat out more than 30 other state and several foreign champions, including 1976 winner Rufus Valdez, a Ute Indian from Albuquerque, N.M., who brought along 20 Indian dancers for moral support. Valdez claimed his "Indian's Revenge" recipe included a pinch of chili grown from 2,000-year-old seeds. The British consul general in Los Angeles, Tom Aston, turned out in a 10-gallon hat and found his country represented by Jack "Blackie" Barber of Stockeges, England, who donned tails and top hat for the occasion. While his friend Joe Michaels looked on, 41-year-old R.S. "Red" Holmes of Stony Brook, N.Y., stirred the New York state pot. "We were both pilots in the China theater during World War II," Michaels said. "I came down with symptoms of malaria. Red had me eat a pot of his chili and two days later I was completely cured."

College Prof Raps Cartoons

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Children's cartoon shows are more violent than evening entertainment for adults, a psychology professor says. And he says that children learn from cartoon characters how to react to frustrations. Dr. Jerome Brodtkie, who has studied the effect of television on children, says kiddie cartoons "are more violent than those nighttime adult TV shows." "Children view this type of action as the normal way to solve frustrations," he said. "An example might be the child who has a conflict in the classroom with someone. He may think of getting a bigger friend to beat up the other guy because he saw it done on television in a 'Roadrunner' cartoon," the Greenwich psychologist says. Brodtkie is an associate professor of psychology at Southern Connecticut State College. He says research has shown that children between the ages of 3 and 12 are the most susceptible to TV violence. Brodtkie says parents should limit their children's TV viewing to eight to 10 hours per week of the least harmful shows. Meanwhile they should encourage the youngsters to find other activities.

ANTIQUE EXPERTS RED-FACED

Pilgrim's Chair Really Is New

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — It looked about 350 years old and came from a respected dealer, so the Henry Ford Museum shelled out $9,000 for an "antique" chair.

Now it develops that, instead of being a Pilgrim relic, "the Great Brewster Chair," apparently was built by an ex-cop from Rhode Island in 1969.

The bad guy — or the good guy, if you share his views about antique dealers and museum officials — is Armand LaMontagne, a 38-year-old woodcarver from North Scituate, R.I., who says he built the chair as a joke on antique experts.

The experts are not exactly rolling in the aisles. "I'm sick to death of it! I'm sick of the whole thing!" antique dealer Roger Bacon shouted into the phone to a Detroit Free Press reporter. "I'm going to quit this business as a result of it!"

Bacon is the New Hampshire dealer who sold the chair to the museum. The then-president of the museum, Donald Shelley, since retired, still maintains that the chair is authentic. He adds:

"I wish you wouldn't even print this kind of story. He (LaMontagne) is embarrassing everybody. This man is up to no good."

LaMontagne, a cop-turned-craftsman who thinks antique experts and museum officials are snooty, says in Sunday's Free Press that he built the chair "for a good laugh. Those people think they're infallible, you know."

The Great Brewster was supposed to be only the third chair of its kind ever discovered — a relic of the pilgrim era, built as a throne for the ruling elder of the Pilgrim Church. The two known to survive were built soon after the Pilgrims landed in 1620, and are on exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and Pilgrim Hall in Plymouth, Mass.

Experts have speculated that the Pilgrims probably left behind "one or two" other Brewster chairs, which lent credibility to the "discovery" of LaMontagne's chair. He maintains that he hasn't made a cent from the chair. After taking two months to build it, using $2 worth of materials and various "aging" techniques, he says he planted it in a house in Maine where he knew antique dealers would find it. He never misrepresented the chair, he says.

Sure enough, it passed through the hands of two or three dealers before coming to Bacon and then, in 1970, to the Henry Ford Museum, which bragged about it at the time. It is not known exactly when the Ford Museum discovered it had a fake on its hands, and museum officials apparently kept mum about it until a late September article in a Rhode Island newspaper.

Robert Wheeler, the museum official now in charge of the discredited piece of furniture, is philosophical about the affair.

"It happens, damn it, and we're just going to have to live with it," he said.

EPA Threatening Two Federal Sites In State

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two federal installations in Michigan may be taken to court unless they comply with U.S. Environmental Protection Agency orders to quit polluting the air and water.

Selfridge Air National Guard Base near Mt. Clemens and the Michigan Army Missile Plant in Warren are among 149 installations that the EPA considers the worst polluters of several thousand federal facilities.

The EPA, which has been criticized for not getting tough enough with government violators of clean air and water standards, is threatening court action against the facilities, which it calls some of the nation's most flagrant polluters.

Selfridge was cited as one of the 18 worst federal offenders of anti-pollution laws and was placed in the EPA's top priority categories.

EPA spokeswoman Martha Casey says the big problem at Selfridge is that the base is dumping about half of its waste water into the Clinton River and Lake St. Clair. The rest is discharged legally into adjacent municipal sewer systems.

The army missile plant, classified as a "major" polluter, was cited for violating air pollution laws by emitting excessive amounts of waste particles from its smokestacks.

EPA said Selfridge has been dragging its heels in negotiating additional sewage disposal contracts while the missile plant needs to install filters on its smokestacks.

The warnings last week marked the first time EPA has threatened legal action against other branches of the federal government. The warnings came after it threatened suits against more than 100 cities and 300 industrial plants which failed to comply with a July 1 deadline.

Those threats were criticized because EPA had taken no similar steps against the thousands of federal facilities that had missed the same cleanup deadline.

The government's agencies against federal polluters have been hampered by a "gentleman's agreement" that no federal agency will not take legal action against another.

EPA Deputy Administrator Barbara Blum said the agency decided on the stronger approach after a legal opinion that it has the power to take federal polluters to court.

Facial Neuritis May Bring Painful Jitters

Often a Chiropractic patient will seek treatment for one problem and will be amazed to discover they have obtained relief from another problem as well.

As an example, Dr. Ackerman, D.C., of Ackerman Chiropractic Center cited the case of a young lady who complained of a slight pain over one eye while visiting her Doctor of Chiropractic for a regularly scheduled treatment.

After thoroughly examining her, the Doctor commenced treatment and asked her to return the next day. When she arrived for her second treatment, she exclaimed, "I don't know what you did, but I'm completely relaxed now... no jittery and nervous... and the pain is gone!"

"Frankly, such a dramatic change in temperament and attitude is easily understandable once we look at the lady's problem," explained Dr. Ackerman.

"The trouble was a low grade irritation of the trigeminal nerve, the nerve which is usually the culprit in facial neuritis."

"Upon examining the patient, the Doctor may find abnormal tenderness on all three branches of the trigeminal nerve, two of which the patient is unaware until they are located. On the third, that which is connected to the nerve above the eye, the irritation can be severe enough make the patient aware of the pain."

Dr. Ackerman further explained that the dramatic change from pain and nervousness to a normal life is more likely to happen if the patient acts as soon as the pain appears. Procrastination is good health's worst enemy.

"All too often, a person will ignore minor, recurring pains or just take a pain pill and try to forget about it," the good Doctor cautions. "But until the cause is found and eliminated, the pain and irritability will return again and again."

Death Penalty Seen As No Deterrent

WASHINGTON (AP) — High conviction rates and prison sentences deter murder, but the death penalty rarely does, a new study says.

The largest murder rate increases tended to occur in states with a poor record of capturing and convicting killers, the Minnesota Law Review report said. "This finding of a deterrent effect of imprisonments of persons convicted of murder is more real than spurious," said author Brian Forst.

Forst, a senior research analyst at the Institute for Law and Social Research, studied murder statistics for 32 states between 1960 and 1970, a decade when the murder rate was rising nationally and the number of executions was declining. Forst wrote that "capital punishment does not, on balance, deter homicides."

If capital punishment deters murder, the murder rate should have increased the most in states where the risk of execution declined the most, Forst said.

Instead, Forst said in a recent interview, "the states that ended the death penalty had smaller increases in the homicide rates. The homicide rate went up more in states which did not have the death penalty in 1960. "It is apparent that those states in which the actual use of capital punishment ceased during the 1960s experienced no greater increase in the murder rate than did the states that did not use capital punishment in the first place.

"Under the theory that capital punishment deters murder, one would have predicted the opposite."

The measure of what happened to murder rates in states that abolished the death penalty before 1960, those that still had a death penalty law but carried out few if any executions and those that used the law more frequently until court decisions forced an end to capital punishment. Court challenges stopped executions in the United States between 1967 and last January.

But many states passed new laws after the Supreme Court ruled in 1976 that the death penalty for murder is constitutional under certain circumstances. Since then, only Utah resumed executions when Gary Mark Gilmore was shot by a firing squad Jan. 17.

Carter Leads Veterans Day Observance

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is leading the nation's Veterans Day observance by placing a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

Max Cleland, the head of the Veterans Administration, planned to accompany Carter to today's ceremony. Cleland lost both legs and an arm from a 1968 grenade explosion in Vietnam.

This is the last year the holiday will fall on different dates around the country. Next year all 50 states return to the traditional Nov. 11.

Forty-seven states have already gone back to that date. Only Utah, Hawaii and Washington, D.C., are observing it today, while Rhode Island honors veterans Nov. 7. For most federal employees, the holiday is today.

The confusion began in 1968 when Congress moved several holidays from their traditional dates to Mondays to create more three-day weekends.

Since 1919 Veterans Day had been observed on Nov. 11. Beginning in 1971, the holiday, originally called Armistice Day, was switched to the fourth

Church Tackling Gay Rights Issue

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The General Assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) has voted to accept a widely criticized report on homosexuality.

The report approved Sunday is designed for study by local congregations. It says the church should work for human and civil rights for homosexuals.

"The report sparked heated opposition, with one Georgia layman asking for instructions on withdrawing from the church, another delegate pleading, 'Inform us, but do not mold us.'"

The church said the report is a study document and is "not to be construed as an official statement."

In explaining the report, the assembly's program said, "There is no evidence that persons whose sexual orientation is in those of the same sex constitute a greater danger or threat to society than any other persons. The task force concluded, therefore, that there is no reason to deny those persons any of the human and civil rights extended to others, and that the church should join in efforts to ensure those rights."

The report also said none of the biblical references to homosexuality are attributed to Jesus. The 1.3 million-member Christian church places great emphasis on the teachings of Jesus and the New Testament.

"Christians have got to consider the words of Jesus primary," said Bob Friedly, public relations director for the assembly. "Most of the (biblical) references are in the Old Testament which is a very different kind of faith."

According to Friedly, the acceptance of the report does not bind the local congregations or require them to study the issue. He said resolutions suggesting that the church take a position on the issue might come at a later meeting.

Fortune Found By Teens Waits Court Decision

WACO, Tex. (AP) — For the past eight months, almost half a million dollars two teen-agers claim they dug up on a southern Texas farm has been sitting in a bank vault, kept separate from other funds in case it was tainted by crime.

The fortune has drawn not a dollar in interest, but last week attorneys for the city asked U.S. District Court Judge Jack Roberts to direct the Citizens National Bank of Waco to put the $483,183 into an interest-bearing account.

Asked if Citizens National would prefer the money in an account, Joe Newton, executive vice president, said, "It's not doing anybody any good just sitting in the vault."

City Atty. Wilcy Stem Jr. said that lawyers are convinced there will be no criminal trials concerning the fortune.

He said the money could earn thousands of dollars in interest, which would go the party that eventually receives the funds, before courts finally determine ownership.

The money was found last January in the trunk of a new 1977 Thunderbird stopped for a traffic violation in Waco.

The two youths driving the car, James Dean Bridges and Percy Arnold Garcia, told police they had bought the car with some of the cash they had found the day before while digging on a ranch owned by Bridges' father, James Hiron.

Hiron did not claim the money, and investigations by government agencies and one state grand jury failed to reveal any criminal activity in connection with it.

State District Court Judge Bill Logan of Waco directed the bank to keep the money separate from other bank funds in case it was needed as evidence in possible criminal proceedings.

The Internal Revenue Service claims it should receive $337,703 of the money. The teenagers say they should get whatever is left.

However, McLennan County is claiming the cash as abandoned property, and the State of Texas also claims a share.

Roberts has set a pretrial hearing date for Feb. 1 in preparation of a trial to determine who will get what amount of the money.

Two Teens Die On State Roads

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two teen-agers and a 10-year-old girl were among eight persons killed in weekend traffic accidents on Michigan streets and highways, state police said today.

Among the victims was a 16-year-old Rockford boy, Randall Blumke, who was driving a tractor on a rural Kent County road, early Sunday when the vehicle went off the roadway and rolled over on top of him, troopers said.

A 16-year-old Mason youth, James A. Ludwick, was killed in his home town Saturday when the car he was driving ran off the road and struck a utility pole.

And 10-year-old Martha Dussan of Ida died early Sunday when the car in which she was a passenger was involved in a broadside collision on Michigan Highway 50 in Monroe County.

Other weekend traffic victims were:

—Ann Mae Davidson, 47, of Detroit, who died early Sunday morning in a head-on collision in Washtenaw County's Dexter Township. She was a passenger in one of the cars, troopers said.

—A 70-year-old Toiyola man, Emil Frederick Kemp, who was walking along a rural Houghton County road west of his home town Friday night when he was struck by a car. Troopers said no charges would be filed against the driver of the car, who told them he could not see Kemp until it was too late to avoid hitting the man.

Armchair Tourists Go Ballooning Across U.S.

By ALICE KOCH
Women's Staff Writer
Travel and adventure series fans Sunday were offered "high adventure" aboard a hot air balloon as they traveled across the United States with Rudi Thurnau.

Twin City Camera Club's second episode of the season, "Up and Away Over the USA," will be presented again today and Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the St. Joseph High School auditorium.

Thurnau sets the mood for twin cities area travelers by placing a replica of his hot air balloon, the "Condor," on the stage of the auditorium.

The filmmaker offers a little background on ballooning, which has gained popularity since the 1960s. It requires 77,000 cubic feet of hot air to operate a balloon. Cost of a balloon, which has a life expectancy of 400 hours, is $12,500.

An operator must have at least 10 hours of instruction and must be able to pass a Federal Aviation Agency examination before receiving a license.

The first hot air balloon was raised in 1783 over Paris, France. Thurnau begins his nine-week venture in Paris, Calif., and concludes in New York City.

The adventurer describes a scene of several colorful balloons as "toys drifting in the sky." He says, because of their unusual appearance, most people do not take ballooning seriously, but adds the sport is really an art to be appreciated.

Thurnau, who left his native Hamburg, Germany, at age 21 with $10 in his pocket, has a sincere love and respect for the natural wonders that can be found in the United States. He urges citizens to see their own country before traveling to Europe.

The beauty of such places as Zion Canyon in Utah, the bear country of Black Hills, S.D., a Navajo Indian reservation at Monument Valley and the Grand Canyon are seen from the gondola in a serene atmosphere that takes nothing away from the fabulous view.

Thurnau stops at Indianapolis, Ind., to participate in the international balloon races. The races began six years ago with 17 entrants. This year's event attracted 200 balloonists and thousands of spectators.

Familiar places in the midwest on the tour are the Wisconsin Dells, Windmill Island in Holland and the city of Grand Rapids.

Viewers cross over Niagara Falls without fear, which was not the case of the balloonist. Thurnau says the fear that something might happen is always there. He cites 20 balloon fatalities over recent years were caused because the balloonist was careless just for a moment.

After a tour of the Amish country in Lancaster, Pa., Thurnau heads for Virginia to attend a wedding aboard a hot air balloon. The event, which attracted 10,000 persons, was delayed for two weeks because of weather conditions. Thurnau offers his balloon to anyone in the area who may wish to be married in the next two days.

Thurnau concludes his presentation by telling the audience to keep a watch in the sky for his balloon which he may fly within the next two days if weather permits.

Realtor - Berrien Real Estate Service

If you try to sell your home yourself, how do you set a realistic price? Most people base their price tags on the only facts known to them: original price, cost of improvements, and hoped-for profit. Then they adjust to bring their figure in line with what they think similar homes are bringing. Sounds reasonable, but three of the basic facts are irrelevant, and the fourth is highly dubious.

The original price, improvements, and hoped-for profit only determine whether you gain or lose, but they have nothing to do with the right price to produce a sale. Prices of other homes may give you some clue to the market, but must fit the time you only hear of the asking price. If it's not a realistic price, it won't be the selling price.

How then do you set a realistic price? By consulting a local Realtor whose business it is to know how much property can bring and will bring. His knowledge of the market is invaluable.

CARTER PROPOSAL STRIPPED DOWN Senate Faces Energy Tax Bill

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy and taxes dominate congressional action this week as the Senate takes up an energy tax bill, the House debates Social Security taxes and a conference committee works on a national energy policy.

While the rest of Congress planned to take the Veterans Day holiday off, the House-Senate energy conference committee was summoned to work by its chairman, Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., who said today's session was "in the national interest."

The 43-member panel made scant progress in three long sessions last week, agreeing only on a compromise requiring utilities to help consumers insulate their homes.

This week it will look at President Carter's proposal to force most utilities and industries burning oil and natural gas to convert to coal. The House passed the President's program, but the Senate voted to allow all but the biggest plants to continue using oil.

The Carter administration can be expected to lobby hard for the House version and to try to persuade conferees to adopt a compromise bill resembling it. The Senate rejected most of the major proposals in the Carter energy plan.

The Senate on Tuesday takes up the final part of that energy legislation — its tax aspects.

But the bill sent to the floor by the Senate Finance Committee contains none of Housepassed taxes, the President has proposed to conserve energy by making scarce fuels more costly.

The committee rejected taxes on crude oil, fuel-inefficient cars and the oil and natural gas used by utilities and factories. Instead, it approved some $40 billion in tax breaks to encourage energy conservation and increased production.

Debate is expected to last all week.

Senate Democratic leaders hope the President's tax program can be salvaged in a conference committee.

In the meantime, a group of Senate liberals led by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has vowed to try to kill off many of the tax breaks in the bill, and attempts are expected on the floor to revive some of the taxes before the bill goes to the conference committee.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., has an amendment to put back into the bill the tax on cars that get poor gasoline mileage. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said he will try to revive the industrial tax on gas and oil use but only on those industries that can switch to coal.

The House begins debate Wednesday on a bill to rescue the deficit-plagued Social Security system by tax increases that would fall most heavily on higher-paid workers and their employers.

Under the plan, those earning $19,900 or more would pay $1,214 next year — $239 more than this year's maximum payroll tax of $965. Bigger increases would come later, with all workers facing some increase by 1981.

The higher taxes employees pay would be matched by their employers.

The Senate Finance Committee will continue work this week on its own version of the Social Security overhaul bill.

Slight Drop Forecast In Rising Oil Imports

By MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Oil imports will account for nearly one-half of the nation's petroleum requirements this year, an industry study indicated today.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America study said imports will supply 45.1 per cent of the needs this year, and about 43.1 per cent next year. By comparison, foreign oil in 1972, the last full year before the Arab oil embargo, accounted for only 29 per cent of domestic supply.

"The nation's rising dependence on imported oil will be stemmed temporarily due to the combined efforts of increased domestic crude oil production, improved efficiency in energy use and greater utilization of domestic coal and nuclear power," the association said.

The supply and demand study was released at the annual meeting of the 5,000-member trade group that represents independent operators from more than 30 states. The report said the 1978 factors that should permit oil imports to drop a bit will not be sufficient, however, to meet the nation's future energy needs.

"Hopefully, deliberations in Congress will lead to adoption of policies which recognize the best interest of the nation will be served by encouraging activities to find and develop this country's potential oil and gas reserves," the report said. The association's tax committee voted Sunday that there is an urgent need for President Carter's energy proposals to be revised to include specific incentives to enable domestic producers to maximize oil and gas explorations.

Johnstown Still Reeling

By DAVE TABOLT
Associated Press Writer

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The mud is gone and the homeless have shelter, but this city is troubled by mental strain and rising joblessness as it rebounds from its summer flood.

Disaster struck this southwestern Pennsylvania city of 41,000 twice this summer. At least 77 persons died when the Conemaugh River flooded July 20, causing an estimated $125 million in damage. Ten people have never been accounted for.

Weeks later, Bethlehem Steel Corp. announced plans to lay off 3,800 workers, and layoffs in allied industries sent the jobless toll to 4,700. By August, the unemployment rate was 17 per cent, a nationwide high.

"We're seeing many more depression cases," said the Rev. Thomas Carroll, chaplain at Johnstown's community hospital. "Anxieties seem to be coming out now. People seem more edgy."

"Jobs were people's security," said the Rev. Carroll. "While they were working, they knew they could regain the material possessions they lost. But without work, their future is squashed."

State officials expect the jobless rate to rise in coming months.

"Right now you can't buy an electrician, a carpenter or a plumber in Johnstown," said Joseph Casale, manager of the state Bureau of Employment Security office.

"The flood has created a boom in the construction business. But in six months that will be over, and when it is, watch out."

Officials at Johnstown Central High say uncertainty about Johnstown's future has caused seniors to take an early interest in enlisting in the military. Others have lost interest in school.

"The attitude I get is one of not caring," said assistant principal Milan Svichan. "They're not mean or vicious. They just don't want to come to school."

He said absenteeism has doubled to about 20 per cent.

"It's frightening," said Alverda Wyrwas, a schoolteacher. "The kids are very nervous, very high strung."

"Young children are afraid of rain or water or going to sleep," adds James Schoenfelder, director of the City-County Clinic, the community's main mental health agency. "They don't want to go to school."

Such behavior can be remedied by understanding parents, he said. But parents, struggling to cope with their own problems, are often at a loss to help.

"Things will never be the same," said 82-year-old Russell Stutzman.

HOKEY PRIZE PRICELESS The Joke's On Them

WARSAW, N.C. (AP) — A Columbia, S.C., radio station tried to make this community of 2,700 the butt of a big-city joke, but a little small-town ingenuity rewrote the punchline.

The station, WIS, sponsored a contest in which the first prize was a trip to Warsaw. Second prize was a week for two in New Orleans. The station called it a "No Contest Contest."

In addition to the accommodations in a Warsaw motel, the prize included bus transportation via Turkey, N.C., which was to have been the original first prize destination, but the station found the bus wouldn't stop there.

Along with the bus tickets came a warm carton of milk, a cheese sandwich, a used pillow and an old magazine.

Joe and Joy Wilson won the trip, and Wilson had to admit that at first blush he was disappointed not to have won second prize instead.

But residents of Warsaw didn't like what the contest had done to their town's image and decided it was up to them to make the Wilsons forget what might have been in New Orleans.

The Warsaw people told the Wilsons to tear up the bus tickets and instead sent Milford Quinn to pick them up Friday in his private airplane.

When they landed in Warsaw, the Wilsons were met at the airport by 200 cheering residents. Officials handed them certificates signed by Gov. Jim Hunt which made them "honorary Tar Heels."

Then the Wilsons went to their motel for more surprises.

"We walked into the motel and it was lined with flowers, buckets of champagne and baskets of fruit," said the amazed Wilson, 30, an installer for Western Electric. "That's really hard to describe."

After that there was a key to the city from Mayor Johnnie Powell, a "pig picking" barbecue in their honor and hours of Warsaw, Kenansville and even Turkey.

"We are a great little town," said Frances Steed, who gave a Saturday luncheon for the Wilsons. The contest, she said, was looked upon at first by townspeople as "a cruel, nasty joke."

But in the end, she said, the station "did us a big favor. Now people have heard of us and know a little more about us."

TWO INJURED IN LINCOLN TOWNSHIP CAR CRASH

Two people were injured late Sunday when an auto ran off eastbound 1-94 south of Grand Mere Road, Lincoln Township, and rolled over, according to state police of the Benton Harbor post.

Troopers Dan Smith and Gary Shaffer reported Lawrence Harrell Jr., 40, and Mattie Morgan, 41, both of Detroit, were treated at Memorial Hospital and released after the 11:10 p.m. crash.

Troopers said they found skid marks 150 feet long at the accident scene and reported Harrell was ticketed for careless driving.

BH Teachers Will Picket After School

Benton Harbor Area Schools teachers will begin after-school picketing today in front of the district's administrative offices and plan to continue each day until a contract is settled with the board of education.

Announcement was made by Mike Schroeder, chief negotiator for the Benton Harbor Education Association, who said picketing will be at 711 E. Britain Ave.

Schroeder said a "representative" group of about 30 teachers will begin manning the picket lines today and will continue picketing each day "to inform the public" of deadlocked contract issues and "to put pressure on the board to get the contract settled."

The approximately 525 teachers in the Benton Harbor school district have continued working without a contract since Aug. 26 when the old two-year contract expired. The membership of the BHEA voted Oct. 13 to authorize the BHEA leadership to call a strike, but has set no date to walk off the job.

The board has requested fact-finding from the Michigan Employment Relations Commission on a number of contract items including salaries, fringe benefits, sick leave and release time for the association's president.

Schroeder said the fact-finding procedure has not yet been set up and an individual agreeable to both the board and the association must be still be selected to act as fact-finder.

The decision to picket the administrative office was made by a strategy committee of the BHEA, according to Schroeder. A rotating group of teachers will picket the administrative offices each day from 3:30 to 5:15 p.m. until a contract settlement is reached, he said.

In another development, Martin Duke, a spokesman for the BHEA, said the teachers crisis and steering committee discussed contract problems with representatives of the Benton Harbor Area Schools Secretaries Association.

The secretaries voted in August to join the Michigan Education Association Organization, which is affiliated with the Michigan Education Association of which the BHEA is a chapter.

Mrs. Nona Rauh, Secretaries president, said the contract of the 80-member secretaries association expired this month, and they have continued working without a contract.

Duke said the two groups agreed the board of education appears to be "following a tactic of rolling back contract language which would adversely affect working conditions."

The shooting was reported to police by South Haven Community Hospital officials before Wegel was transferred to Holland Hospital.

Bullfighting Measure Is Withdrawn

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A House bill to legalize bullfighting in Michigan was withdrawn today by its sponsor after widespread public opposition.

Rep. Charlie Harrison, D-Pontiac, said he was withdrawing the legislation because the public doesn't want it. Promoters had suggested holding the bullfights in Pontiac.

"I have received numerous telephone calls and letters from citizens all over the state," Harrison told Judiciary Committee Chairman Paul Rosenbaum in asking that the bill be withdrawn from his committee.

"The sentiment of nearly all callers and writers has been negative to the idea of bullfighting in this state, even on a limited basis where the bull would not be harmed," he added.

After introducing the bill two weeks ago, Harrison cited a 1975 survey by Market Opinion Research which claimed widespread public acceptance of the idea as a sports attraction.

"While I do not question the validity of the report, I feel the calls and letters I have received in the past week to be a better barometer of public opinion on the subject," Harrison said.

'Abused Woman' Murder Trial Starting Today

By CYNTHIA KYLE Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Jury selection began today in the trial of a woman charged with the first-degree murder of her ex-husband — a high school sweetheart who allegedly beat her after they were married.

A crowd of supporters gathered outside Judge Ray Hotchkiss's Ingham County courtroom today for the trial of Francine Hughes. Feminist groups say she is representative of women abused by their husbands.

Mrs. Hughes, 30, the mother of four children, is accused of the premeditated murder of her former husband, James. Hughes, 31, died in a fire March 9 in the home the couple shared in Danville.

Police said Mrs. Hughes surrendered immediately after putting her children in the car and allegedly igniting gasoline poured around the bed where her ex-husband slept.

Her supporters, led by the Francine Hughes Defense Committee, have raised about $1,000 to pay for expert witnesses and new clothes for Mrs. Hughes to wear during the hearing.

At least five groups have expressed backing for the committee. The groups include the Michigan National Organization of Women, Sisters for Human Equality, the New American Movement, the Lansing chapter of the National Lawyers Guild and the Kitty Genovese Anti-Rape Collective.

The groups argue Mrs. Hughes was beaten repeatedly by her husband, both during their marriage and after their divorce in 1971. They were married after high school graduation in 1965.

In-laws persuaded Mrs. Hughes to buy the home next to her ex-husband in order to care for him following his serious injury in an automobile accident, the groups say. The accident occurred after one of Hughes' court-allowed visits to the couple's children.

The children, who range in age from 6 to 12, now live with Mrs. Hughes' mother in Jackson.

Hotchkiss dismissed a felony murder charge against Mrs. Hughes last Thursday, granting a defense motion that the evidence didn't support the second charge.

The trial was moved from Mason to Lansing and delayed a week because Judge Michael Harrison, originally scheduled to hear the trial, disqualifies himself because of an alleged prejudicial remark.

Harrison said he would remove himself from the case in the interest of fairness, although he did not recall making the comment.

Mrs. Hughes faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment, if convicted.

Killed By Hit-Run Airplane

MIAMI (AP) — An unidentified woman was killed on a rural dirt road southwest of here when an airplane swooped down from the sky and struck her, Dade County police said today.

Robert Cook of Miami, told police he saw the plane land just ahead of him as he was driving his van along the road. He said it took off after a brief taxi at dusk Sunday, and two cars then raced down the road and pulled alongside his van.

The occupants of the cars "told me that the plane tried to kill them and that it... hit her," Cook said. "I saw the plane go down."

It was not immediately determined whether the plane was on the ground when it hit the woman.

Police said they wanted to talk with the witnesses in the two cars.

Officers said they have a partial description of the airplane — a white single-engine craft with red lettering.

Humphrey Returns To Washington

exemplifies what our nation stands for better than he," said Carter.

"If there is a retarded child in our country who hasn't been helped by Sen. Humphrey, I don't know about it. Every elderly person in our nation, every poor person in our nation, every black person in our nation, everyone who has come here from overseas who doesn't speak English well, everyone who lives in something of despair, knows that they have one staunch and undying friend in Sen. Hubert Humphrey."

When the plane landed in Washington, the President performed a little ceremony. As Humphrey and his wife watched, Carter signed a bill naming the new headquarters of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare the Hubert H. Humphrey Building.

Carter called it a "great honor for our government...."

"It's a great honor for me, sir," the senator replied. Carter handed Humphrey the pen he used to sign the bill. "This is for Muriel," said Humphrey, passing the pen to his wife.

In Minneapolis, Humphrey told of receiving a call on Friday from former President Gerald Ford, who wanted to make a bet on Saturday's Michigan-Minnesota football game. Ford offered to bet Humphrey 14 points. The senator demanded 21 and got 20.

Minnesota upset Michigan 16-0 and Humphrey won $5 from Ford.

After relating the story, Humphrey told Carter he hoped the bet was legal and "if it isn't, I ask for forgiveness."

Carter replied, "I will pardon you on that one."

Five Vie For Presidency

DETROIT (AP) — Five candidates, including one from a dissident Teamsters group, will vie for the presidency of the 14,000-member Detroit local once headed by James H. Hoffa. In a noisy two-hour session Sunday, members of Teamsters Local 299 picked a total of 49 candidates for seven offices to be filled. The election will be the first for Local 299 — which has been torn by violence and factionalism for nearly a decade — since the disappearance of ex-Teamsters boss Hoffa on July 30, 1975. Nominated for the local presidency were incumbent Robert Lins; Otto Wendel Sr., now secretary-treasurer; business agents Peter Karaguzian and George Lankhill; and Gene Fleszar of the rebel Teamsters for a Democratic Union (TDU). TDU leader Peter Camarata was nominated for the vice presidency. Conspicuous by his absence is the name of Richard Fitzsimmons, Local 299 vice president and son of Frank Fitzsimmons, president of the international union and another who rose to power through the local.

Dow's Measures 'Adequate'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Dow Chemical Co. did not violate state health standards when its Midland plant spewed forth a cloud of toxic chlorine gas two weeks ago, says the state Department of Public Health. The department said the gas leak, which released about 400 pounds of chlorine into the atmosphere, was caused by a valve failure. Dow took adequate emergency measures, the department said, and there was no specific violation of state occupational health standards or rules. It said, however, that Dow should completely review its maintenance procedures to minimize the possibility of future such equipment failures.

Political Vandalism

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Police are investigating more damage to cars belonging to campaign workers for mayoral candidate Frank Hubbard. Police said radio antennas were stolen, fenders kicked in and windows broken on cars parked outside a Hubbard rally Saturday night. Hubbard, son of longtime incumbent Mayor Orville Hubbard, says the vandalism is politically motivated. A Hubbard worker's car was firebombed earlier this month.

Carter Was Attraction

DETROIT (AP) — A midwest forum on poverty that began with the ballyhoo of a presidential visit ended on a much quieter note, with only a single politician in sight. About 400 persons attended the opening session Friday to get a glimpse of President Carter and hear his responses to panelists discussing the plight of the urban poor. By Saturday's closing session, the number had dwindled to fewer than 100. The only politico spotted Saturday was state Sen. David Holmes, D-Detroit. There were no demonstrators and only a handful of security guards. The conference was sponsored by the federal Community Services Administration, which administers anti-poverty programs. The Detroit forum was the third of 10 to be held around the country to hear directly from poor people on anti-poverty programs.

Minnesota Firm Buys Foundry

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — A Minnesota firm is the new owner of Michigan's oldest foundry, Traverse City Iron Works. Officials for the family-owned Traverse City firm said the sale was for American Hoist and Derrick Co. stock and cash but did not disclose the amount. American Hoist is based in St. Paul, Minn. The iron works, founded in 1871, makes fire hydrants and specialized valves for fire sprinklers and sewage or water treatment plants. Officials said the foundry will be part of American Hoist's Watrous division keeping its present management and workers. Watrous and the iron works had been competitors. Tuesday's announcement said the addition should boost Watrous' sales this year to $25 million.

Tavern Shooting

EATON RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Police are investigating the shooting death of a woman and the wounding of a man in a local tavern. Eaton County sheriff's deputies identified the dead woman as Janet May Skinner, 58, of Tecumseh. Hospitalized with a leg wound was James William Johnson, 41, of Eaton Rapids. Deputies were holding another bar patron in the case. His name was withheld pending arraignment on a murder charge. Authorities didn't say what touched off the Saturday night shooting.

Great-Gramma's Winner

DETROIT (AP) — A septuagenarian great-grandmother returns to the Michigan state lottery "Michigan" show this week after winning a $109,000 birthday present here. Thursday night's winner, Louise Seymour of Flint, displaced the Cricket Lottery Club of Battle Creek, a six-member group that chalked up $212,000 in winnings before being knocked out of the running. Mrs. Seymour, celebrates her 79th birthday Oct. 29. Other winners in the drawing were Stirling Douglass, 64, Fowlerville, who won $15,000; Niles Carlson, 56, Pontiac, $14,000; Frank Kolakowski, 60, Wyandotte, $7,000; Frederick Jenkinson, 50, Sterling Heights, $5,000, and Clea Meyle 45, Kalamazoo, $5,000.

Plane Lands In Median

BRIGHTON, Mich. (AP) — A pilot made a risky but safe landing on the grassy median of Interstate 96 about two miles west of here after his single-engine plane developed carburetor trouble, state police said. Troopers said the pilot, Thornton Cressy, 57, of Westland, was uninjured and the plane undamaged after the unscheduled Sunday afternoon landing. Nobody else was aboard. The plane remained on the median late Sunday and police said they weren't quite sure what to do with it. They added that Cressy probably won't be ticketed.

Bill Defines 'Intent'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill making it easier for prosecutors to bring charges against construction firms which violate safety standards is now before the House. The measure was approved unanimously by the House Labor Committee. It stems from a legislative investigation of the 1971 Port Huron Tunnel disaster. The bill seeks to clarify the definition of "intent" to commit a violation. It would define such intent as "knowingly and purposely" disregarding safety standards. Prosecutors have complained that the definition of "willful intent" under present law is vague and has hindered efforts to bring violators to trial. Under current law, prosecutors must prove intent to win such cases.

This House Is Haunted For Reason

Fund-raising and hair-raising are the goals of Lake Michigan College music students' haunted house scheduled for Oct. 28 through 31 and located next to the National Guard Armory, 128 North Pier, St. Joseph.

The haunted house, with its scary skits, apparitions, eerie music and ghastly decorations, is being designed and staffed by members of the LMC Band and Choir Association, an LMC press release said.

is to help provide the association with funds for serious off-campus educational and musical activities during the 1977-78 school year, according to Tim Boyd, sophomore music student from Dowagiac and co-chairman of the haunted house committee.

Geared primarily to hold the attention of youngsters-age 8 through 16 but enjoyable for older people as well, according to the press release, the spooky event will be accompanied each night by a series of events and surprises in the front yard to entertain those waiting in line.

Tours of the haunted house will be conducted by "witches" who will guide guests through an array of skits held in different rooms. The press statement said that members of the LMC band and choir will act as friendly vampires, witches, and werewolves to guide young and old through the eerie facilities and take part in the skits.

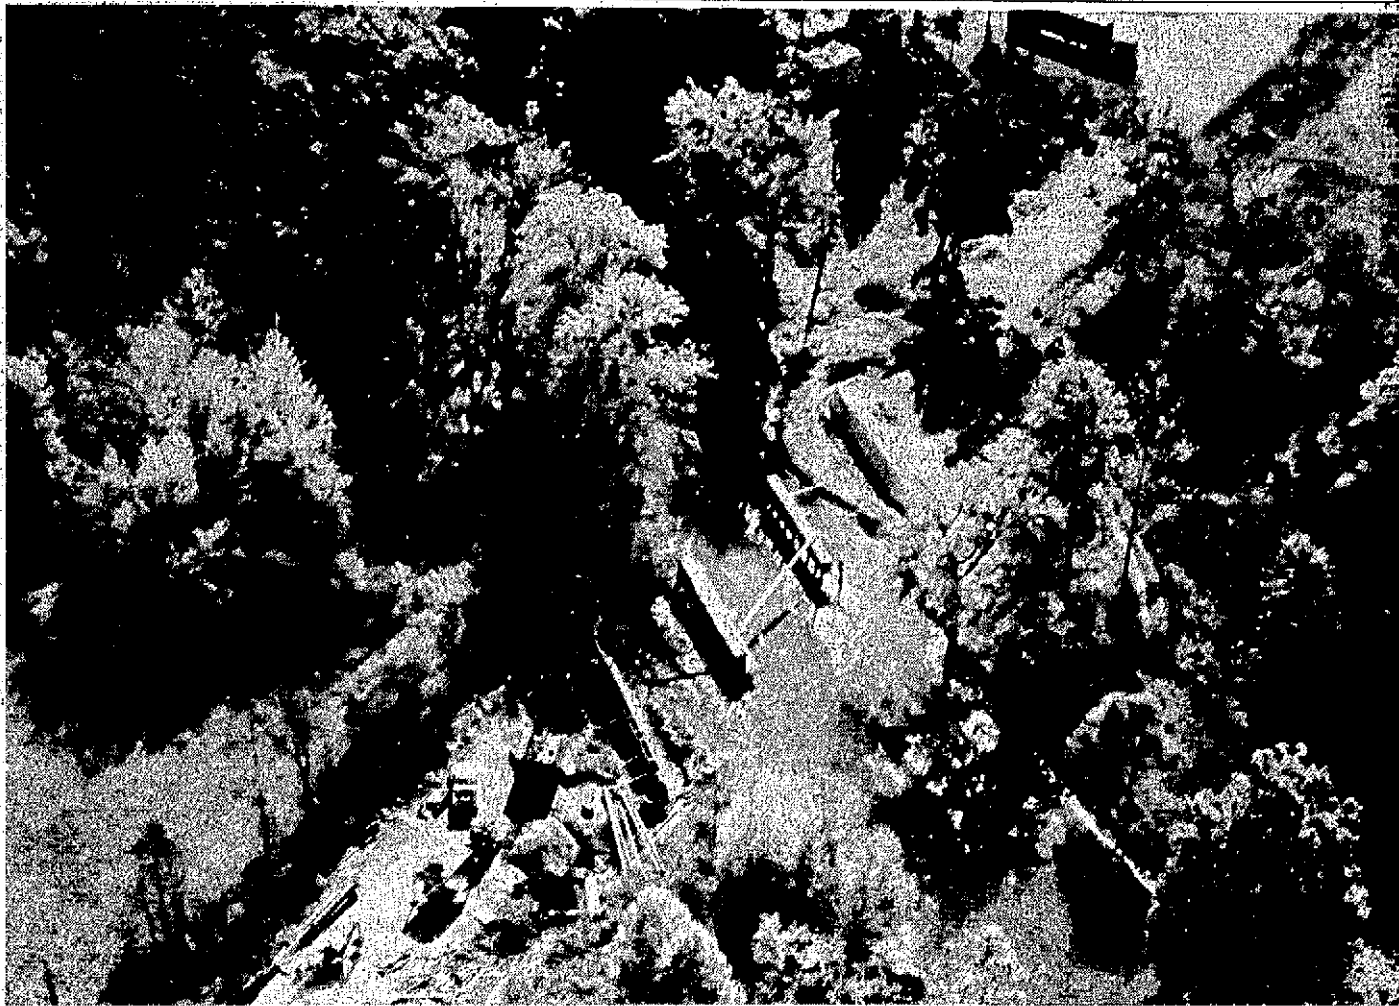

The event will be in continuous operation from 6 to 11 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28; 1 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 11 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29; 7 to 10 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30; and 6 to 11 p.m. Monday, Oct. 31.

Admission at the gate will be 50 cents for children under 12 and $1 for adults. All children under 12 must be accompanied by an adult while in the haunted house, according to Linda Butera, sophomore music student from Benton Harbor and haunted house publicity chairman.

Dr. Donald Moely, head of the LMC music department, is the college faculty member in charge of the project. Other haunted house committee co-chairmen are Mark Arent of Benton Harbor and Don Russell of St. Joseph, both LMC music students. The National Guard Armory is near Tiscornia Beach in north St. Joseph.

SABOTAGE BLAMED

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Sabotage is being blamed for the derailment of four cars on a train filled with Detroit-area tourists returning from a weekend in Toronto.

OPEN IN MONTH: County Line Road bridge over Paw Paw River near Watervliet is expected to be open for traffic within 30 days, according to Paul Kaiser, engineer-manager of Van Buren County Road Commission. Motorists have been unable to cross river on County Line Road since Nov. 1, 1975, when pickup truck crashed into old structure, undermining corner and twisting bridge. Kaiser said workmen from R.J. Plockmeyer Construction Co., Allegan, began construction on footings in July, and beams are to be installed next week. Bridge is located on line between Van Buren and Berrien Counties about one-quarter mile south of Dwight Boyer Road, but bridge itself is on section in Van Buren jurisdiction. New structure, costing $121,350, replaces wood and iron bridge built in 1896. Kaiser said cost of replacement is being shared by Van Buren County with federal government, with county paying 27 percent of cost. (Adolph Hann aerial photo)

Dystrophy Fund Drive Will Start

Volunteer firemen from St. Joseph Township's Station 1 will begin their annual Muscular Dystrophy drive this evening, according to Station 1 Fire Chief Fred Beckman.

He said it will take volunteers several evenings to cover the homes in the station's district, west of the St. Joseph River in the township.

Collections will be turned over to the Southwest Michigan Chapter of Muscular Dystrophy Association of America. Beckman is general chairman of the annual drive in Berrien, Cass, Van Buren, Allegan and St. Joseph counties which runs through the third week in November.

Telephone Eavesdropping Ban Sought

By ROB WILSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Newspapers, police officers and the phone companies eavesdrop. Now it's up to the state House to decide whether they can keep on doing it.

What these groups and many others practice is telephone eavesdropping. Police monitor conversations in hopes of catching crooks. Employers listen in mainly to check on the performance of employees.

A bill set for House debate this week would prohibit such snooping by everyone except police and telephone companies. The phone companies would be allowed to continue monitoring only on a restricted basis in which both parties are aware that they're being listened to.

The measure has received sharp opposition from Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and the Michigan Press Association. Both argue that a little snooping can go a long way toward improving their services.

"In the newspaper business, telephone monitoring is principally used in the classified ad departments where calls are strictly business-oriented and any monitoring is strictly for the consumer's benefit and protection," says Warren Hoyt, executive director of the press association.

Opponents of the bill say eavesdropping provides an effective method of training new employees to be courteous and informative on the phone. Members of the news media are quick to point out that monitoring occurs only in the advertising department — not in the news and editorial sections.

A spokesman for The Detroit News said, "There is a definite need for supervisory monitoring and quality assurance in businesses such as The News. There is no substitute for such monitoring as it is now practiced."

The phone company says the proposed restrictions are so stiff that eavesdropping probably would have to be eliminated entirely.

Under the bill, a phone company could listen in only by preceding the snoop with a "beep tone." The beep would have to sound at the beginning of each monitoring session and be repeated at 10-second intervals.

"This would create an artificial feeling that is disruptive," says Charles Durr of Michigan Bell. And, he added, the bill "is totally unworkable and would put us out of business."

How the House will vote on the measure is unclear. But the House Civil Rights Committee, which has approved the bill, wasn't swayed by the arguments of the phone companies or the newspapers.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Mark Chodoff, D-Flint, says "the practice of monitoring phone conversations is an abhorrent one. Monitoring is not necessary and not justified. The possibilities are frightening."

Chodoff says his bill would protect against invasion of privacy. The bill also carries stiff penalties. A violation would be considered a felony, subject to a maximum two years in jail and a $20,000 fine. Anyone making or selling monitoring devices would be liable for the same penalties.

BH Gas Station Scene Of Gunpoint Robbery

A handit robbed a Benton Harbor service station attendant at gunpoint Sunday morning, escaping with $70, according to city police.

Patrolman George Hawblitzel said attendant Sammie Allen, 26, told him a man came into the Arco service station at the intersection of East Street and Fair Avenue about 5:40 a.m. and asked to purchase a package of cigarettes.

The attendant reported he turned his back on the man to get the cigarettes and when he turned around the man was pointing a handgun at him and demanded money, Hawblitzel said.

Hawblitzel said the robber took service station receipts totaling $70 and fled on foot west on East Main.

The bandit was described as tall and thin with braided hair and wearing a black shirt and blue pants, according to Hawblitzel.

Hawblitzel said Allen told him he was preparing to deposit the $70 in a station safe minutes before the robbery.

The station was remodeled and reopened last summer after being closed for several years.

Trailer Load Of Farm Tractors Disappears

NEW BUFFALO — A semi-trailer loaded with three new farm tractors was reported stolen from a truck plaza here Sunday.

Estimated value of the trailer and its load was $111,000, according to state police here.

According to police, the trailer load of tractors had been parked at Hildebrand's Truck

Plaza Saturday night. It was discovered missing Sunday morning about 11:30 a.m. by the driver of the load, Martin Klimach, Paw Paw. He told troopers he parked the trailer at the plaza and then left in the truck tractor.

Police said they believe someone else with a truck tractor hooked up the trailer and drove away. Police said it does not appear that someone else from the company Klimach was hauling for the Diamond Transportation System, Racine, Wis.

Police said the tractors, International Farmalls, were each valued at $32,000 and the trailer was valued at $15,000.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Jack Frost's icy hand is nearly on the pumpkin, but he'll find the orange-colored globes somewhat changed from their days of pioneer glory.

The vining symbols of harvest's end are novelties now, of little use but for holiday sweets and the Halloween jack-o'-lanterns of childhood delight.

"It's not a big crop in Michigan," says Don Fedewa, statistician in charge at the Michigan Crop Reporting Service in the Department of Agriculture.

Fedewa says 236 farms reported 662 acres of pumpkins in 1974, and he estimates that the acreage has grown to at least a 1,000 now. Most pumpkins are scattered across the southeastern section of the state; Wayne County's yield is the greatest.

But declining demand has modernized and streamlined the packaging of the gourd whose ancient Greek name means "cooked by the sun," says Hugh Price, associate professor of horticulture at Michigan State University.

New varieties produce large numbers of uniformly sized pumpkins that are ideal for the jack-o'-lantern trade. Price says. The vegetable's vines that can sprawl as far as 15 feet one way are restrained in bush-type plants more practical for small home gardens. Price adds.

More compact squashes more easily prepared for long-term storage are even replacing pumpkins in commercial canning operations, he says.

Jan Maynard has been growing pumpkins for sale at E and E Farms, a roadside stand on the outskirts of Lansing, for about two years. This year, she grew almost 2,400 of them in three irrigated acres of muck.

Last year, the huge, bright-colored ones were much in demand, she says, but this year small pie pumpkins are more popular.

"I tell the children to pick the small pumpkins that are better for pies," she says. "The mothers figure why waste the pumpkin if you have to have one. And the children always want to buy a little one for grandma."

Pumpkin experts agree that the best jack-o'-lanterns are made from pumpkins with cut stems free from bruises and bumps. Green ones are to be avoided as immature and quick to spoil. They should be so hard they can't be punctured with a fingernail.

The best time to buy is right before Halloween, Price says, before a hard frost chills the heat stored inside the fleshy ball.

"After that they're not much good," he says. "It's kind of like Christmas trees after Christmas."

Wife Becomes Trucker To Ride With Spouse

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) —

Two years ago, Jackie Tisch couldn't drive a stick-shift car. Now she's with her husband, driving a 42-foot tractor-trailer cross-country.

"I was tired of my job and I hated being separated from my husband days at a time," says Mrs. Tisch, 29, who had been a dental assistant for six years.

"Larry borrowed a truck from a dealer and taught me to drive. We would go to a football stadium up north where I drove around and around in a snow-packed field until I mastered the gears," she says.

She took her chauffeurs' test, passed and joined her husband at the wheel.

They sold their home and furniture and bought a $52,000 refrigerated rig that Mrs. Tisch says "was worth twice as much as our home."

They now live in the truck. "It's not as bad as it sounds," she says. "We had plenty of room for three large pieces of luggage, a train case and two sets of golf clubs."

They have a double-wide sleeper behind the cab, a stereo, television set, radio and CB set. They aim for 1,000 miles a day and travel mostly interstate highways at night when they can make the best time.

The only problem, she says, is food. "All menus look the same after a couple of days on the road. Have you ever heard a place with a bunch of trucks in front of it is a good place to eat? Don't believe it. Truckers are there because there's room to park, food service is fast and they gas up there."

What about spats? "Oh, we have lots of fights," says Mrs. Tisch. "When I get mad, I just go in the other room and pout." That's the double bunk, arm's length from the cab.

Tisch, 31, says he, too, likes the setup. "It's hard enough to get along with your wife for 24 hours a day. But it's impossible to get along with another man for that long."

Prince Becomes Texas Cowboy

By MILLER BONNER

Associated Press Writer

ARMSTRONG, Tex. (AP) — The heir to the British throne donned cowboy gear, chaps and all, to ride the Texas range. But he sat on an English saddle.

Prince Charles was on horseback Sunday, riding through a herd of cattle with his hosts, Tobin and Anne Armstrong, who was ambassador to the Court of St. James's under former President Gerald Ford.

It was the start of a three-day tour of the Lone Star State. The prince was scheduled to visit Houston today for a tour of the U.S. Space Center. On Tuesday, he travels to San Antonio for a tour of the Alamo.

"He really knows his livestock," said Mrs. Armstrong. "Tobin has been so occupied preparing for the prince's visit that he hadn't had time to have the cattle sprayed and the prince noticed the flies on the cattle's shoulders."

The prince also participated in a polo match Sunday. Most of it was closed to the media and the results were not known.

"The understanding was that this was his off day to get off by himself and get out of the public eye," explained Mrs. Armstrong, who gave a barbecue in Prince Charles' honor.

Charles arrived here after visits in Georgia and South Carolina. He worshipped at the Cathedral of St. Philip in Atlanta Sunday, asking those who waited outside for a chance to see him: "Why weren't you in church?"

Worshippers needed admission tickets to attend.

In San Francisco, where Charles is to appear Thursday, demonstrators opposed to the continued presence of British soldiers in Northern Ireland say they are preparing 1,500 black coffins for a grim protest of the four-day visit.

"The Prince of Wales represents a government indicted by the European Council of Human Rights for the torture of Irish men imprisoned without trial," said spokesman Seamus Gibney. "We're trying to let people know that British torture continues."

INTRODUCING A NEW KIND OF LUXURY COMPACT.

THE 1978 AMC CONCORD D/L.

Concord D/L 2-door sedan. Also available in 4-door sedan and wagon models.

Big car luxury in a sleek, compact size.

The Concord D/L's luxury has been slimmed and toned on a trim 108-inch wheelbase. The elegant exterior of the 2-door sedan has a formal Landau vinyl roof with opera windows. Both sedans and the wagon have white sidewall tires with color-keyed wheel covers, color-keyed side scuff moldings, bumper nerfing strips and a distinctive hood ornament. And those are just a few of the standard features that add to Concord D/L's striking appearance.

The ride, as you would expect of such a luxurious car, is uncommonly smooth and quiet.

Interiors that make you feel good inside.

Seated inside a Concord D/L you'd never believe it was a low-priced compact car. It's loaded with luxurious extras at no extra cost.

There's crushed velour upholstery throughout, (soft-foam vinyl on the wagon), with plush, cut-pile carpeting. The front seats recline individually. The handsome wood-grained instrument panel overlay houses an electric digital clock. The entire passenger compartment is shielded from road noises by an Extra Quiet Insulation package. Even the trunk and spare tire cover are carpeted.

Now you don't have to pay extra for the luxury of a luxury compact.

Whether you choose one of the sedans or the wagon, we think you'll agree what makes it even more amazing is the outstanding value Concord D/L offers for the money. Because all the "extras" just mentioned are included at no extra cost. And the price is as modest as the car is luxurious.

You also get AMC's exclusive BUYER PROTECTION PLAN*, with the only full-12 month/12,000 mile warranty. That means AMC will fix, or replace free any part, except tires, for 12 months or 12,000 miles whether the part is defective, or just plain wears out under normal use and service.

* Buyer Protection Plan is Reg. U.S. Pat. and Tm. Off.

State's 'Lottery Mile' Finale Earns Homemaker $100,000

DETROIT (AP) — Homemaker Helen Meyers was the big winner at Detroit Race Course this weekend as her horse came through in the Michigan Lottery Mile, earning her $100,000.

Mrs. Meyers, of Detroit, competed with nine other lottery finalists in a special state lottery drawing in which the winner was decided by the outcome of a horse race. She drew No. 3 — which turned out to be the post position of 8-year-old thoroughbred Ace Commander, who went on to beat Geranium in the final strides of the race.

No stranger to horseracing, Mrs. Meyers, 56, said that up until Saturday's race she preferred playing bingo. She says she'll take a trip to Hawaii with her winnings.

Junior Charles Huber of Warren had Geranium and collected $80,000 second place money. Norma McNalley, a Detroit homemaker and mother, collected $30,000 as her horse, Chargeam, finished third.

A total of $530,000 was distributed to the 10 finalists.

Judge Still Blocking Funds

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A federal judge is continuing until Nov. 7 an order blocking payment of $1.5 million in federal funds to 30 Michigan counties. U.S. Dist. Court Judge Wendell Miles said he will issue an opinion on the case before his temporary restraining order expires. Miles originally issued the order last month at the request of six townships and the Michigan Townships Association. Townships in Benzie, Chippewa, Lake, Leelanau and Mason counties sued over distribution of money intended to make up for lost taxes in counties where there are large holdings of federal land.

Sixteen Men Building Railroad

By JERRY GRAY
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — In a day of government-supported railroads, 16 Memphis men are building their own — with no help from Uncle Sam.

And when the East Tennessee & Gulf Railroad is finished, it may be the biggest of its kind in the Southeast.

Work began March 1. When the golden spike is driven sometime in July of 1978, the builders say their 35-by-15-foot 160 model railroad layout will represent 4,000 man hours of work.

"We have about 700 feet of track. That breaks down to 11 1/2 scale miles," said John Russell, owner of R & R Hobbies of Memphis. "We have 150 switches, and an estimated 5,000 pounds of plaster will go into the scenery."

There is nothing factory-made about the giant layout being built in the back room of Russell's shop. Most of the detail work must be done by hand — someone has to stain each of the 35,000 ties and drive some 70,000 spikes by hand.

"Every three-foot section takes about five man-hours, that's to lay the ties, lay the rail and spike it," Russell said.

When completed, the East Tennessee & Gulf, with its 12 miles of wiring, will require 12 men to operate at full capacity.

he said. Up to 10 trains will be able to run at one time.

The more than 300 pieces of rolling stock will bear East Tennessee & Gulf's own logo as well as the railroad's orange and brown and white stripe color scheme.

The railroad's founders range in age from 22 to 65. All the work is done voluntarily and the rolling stock is from the modelers' private collections. Still, it's costing them an estimated $10,000 out of their own pockets.

"An individual couldn't go out and have it built in his house," Russell said. "If you wanted a layout of this magnitude built in your home it would cost you about $25,000 to have it done."

Russell said the East Tennessee & Gulf is being built for the pleasure of model railroaders in Memphis. The layout will be open on Saturdays for the public to see at no charge.

Trains have always been a favorite children's toy, Russell said, but they are no longer considered merely toys and adults now dominate the buying.

"Our locomotives that go on the layout will average from $125 on up to $300 apiece," he said. "Not very many children I know of could afford a $200, $300 or $400 locomotive."

But why did the modelers, deep in West Tennessee's rolling hills, choose the name "East Tennessee & Gulf?"

"We have more mountain area in East Tennessee and Virginia and around that area than we do in West Tennessee so it makes for a better scenery layout," Russell said.

Defense Has Achilles Heel

Anyone who has suffered an electrical outage with New England weather in full blast knows the meaning of the weak link. Off goes the furnace, the hot water heater, the stove, the refrigerator and, of course, the lights and anything plugged into the sockets. It doesn't make any difference whether you have the latest model heat pump at $15,000 or a slightly sooty 1960 burner start a fire in the fireplace.

I keep meditating on this as I read about some new M-X missile that has 14 MIRVs and rides around in its own subway. Theoretically, at a time when the Soviets could pinpoint our fixed Minutemen and possibly take them out with a first strike, the M-X would be scuttling around in its tunnel, invulnerable. However, I want to know a lot more about this project before I reach for my wallet — it reminds me of those nuclear-tipped cross-bow bolts for counter-insurgency.

But that's not today's point. If you look at all the different theories of nuclear war and deterrence — and there are more scenarios than anyone can absorb without going mad — there is one implicit premise: the juice won't go off. That is, the communications network which provides the guidance, surveillance and warning will not go off the air. But suppose we are blinded? Suppose at a crucial moment our satellites stop transmitting?

Reading Len Deighton's gripping account of the Battle of Britain, "Fighter," reinforces this concern. What saved the Fighter Command was its advance warning system based on radar. Air Marshal Dowding, with an accurate projection of Nazi target zones, could nurse his forces rather than scrambling all hand every time the Heinkels showed up. The stations were great, clumsy things along the shore, and one day the Luftwaffe decided to go after them, but dropped the project after a few days.

British radar, they decided, was not that important. Why? Because they assumed the British would employ it as the Germans did theirs and thus its vulnerability was vastly underestimated, and because the British with heroic exertions kept the net operating, the radar station-busting apparently had no impact on Nazi losses. If the Germans had systematically obliterated the stations, Britain would have been at their mercy.

Two or three years ago the word got around that the Soviet Union was developing killer-satellites. I discussed it here on the basis of unimpeachable private sources, but official spokesmen for the Pentagon and intelligence agencies were obviously told to deny it and did. Talking about things like this was "bad for morale." It was branded as just another crazy hallucination among the cold warriors, characters incapable of appreciating the good intentions of the Politburo.

Concededly we do view the Politburo's intentions with roughly the sentiments a mongoose devotes to a cobra, but I submit the record fully supports our cold skepticism. Now, for example, we learn from Secretary of Defense Harold Brown that Moscow has developed the "operational capacity" to destroy our satellites in space. In what must be in compensation for the understatement of the year he continued, wistfully, "I find that somewhat troublesome." Then the truth came out, fully verifying the lunacy of us cold warriors: since 1968 the U.S.S.R. has conducted at least 11 test kills (on their own satellites) with seven successes.

Secretary Brown admitted that the United States had dropped an anti-satellite weapons-system developed in the 1960s as inefficient and flutty stated we had no present capability to deal with Moscow's hunter-killers. He then took refuge in pathetic piety: "I hope that we can keep space from becoming an area of active hostilities." Brown's attitude was precisely that of cavalry generals in World War I who urged the airplane be barred from reconnaissance missions.

Now unless you think President Brezhnev has invented some new toys just for the hell of it, he has the capacity to make space "an area of active hostilities." In practical terms, he may have the option of blinding us in a crisis. Furthermore, to whatever extent our missiles are guided by satellite control, our targeting system could be knocked askew. I suppose we could point our Minutemen in the general direction of the Soviet Union and let fly, but that's not in the manual.

In short, I would not count on compassion or good will to prevent Moscow from utilizing this breakthrough. Put the M-X on its underground drawing board, and get to work on this critical weak link in our defenses.

Actor Rooney's Latest Product -- 'Ripoff' Shorts

Q: Mickey Rooney always struck me as being a bundle of energy in his movies and TV appearances. Is he like that in real life? — K.D., Rockford, Ill.

A: Absolutely. Mickey just completed two movies, "Lassie, My Lassie" and Walt Disney's "Pete's Dragon" in Hollywood, and is off to Chicago for a stage production of "Hide and Seek." On top of that, he's created a mail-order dramatic school and is manufacturing an interesting consumer product — paper underwear, — called Ripoffs. Mickey's son is no slouch either. He's a singer and is

A: Money! True, Dreyfuss has two biggies coming out — "The Goodbye Girl" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," but who could resist the kind of money he was offered to do the TV films — like $50,000 a day for five days' work, or a quarter of a million dollars in one week. He has said, however, that he would not involve himself in that kind of quickly mounted project again, no matter what the money.

MOVIE BUFF: President Carter may favor stringing quarters as White House entertainment, but watch and see if we don't begin to see a parade of movie stars coming to dinner at the executive mansion. Jimmy has turned into a movie buff and told a group of film producers recently that he had seen more movies in the last eight months than he had in the previous eight years. Of course, Carter doesn't have to go downtown and wait in line. He just strolls into his very own, very private screening room and sees a movie of his very own choice.

Q: With Ali MacGraw back making movies, how does that affect her marriage to Steve McQueen? — F.A., Fayetteville, N.C.

A: Steve and Ali are as thick as ever. While she was making "Convoy" with Kris Kristofferson, Ali received many visits from Steve and their various children on the set. They're so close these days that he is taking a somewhat dim view of Ali's latest movie offer because it would mean she'd have to spend sometime in South America. Steve doesn't want that much distance between him and Ali.

Q: Do many celebrities wear contact lenses? You so rarely see famous people wearing eyeglasses. — D.O., Martinez, Calif.

A: You'd be amazed at the number of well-known people who now wear contacts. A Manhattan optometrist has a star-studded list of patients including Barbara Walters, Princess Grace, Bill Cosby, and the Shah of Iran. He fitted the near-blind daughter of Holland's Queen Juliana and she was so grateful she sent him a Rolls-Royce as a gift.

making his first record, an album of country-western-rock tunes. So the Rooney spunk runs in the family.

TAILOR-MADE MOVIE: Back in 1974 author William ("Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid") Goldman met Ann-Margret at one of her typical Hollywood parties. They chatted for quite a while. Now, three years later, Goldman has written a new book, "Magic," with a heroine, Peggy Ann Show, who bears more resemblance to Ann-Margret than just the variation on the actress-singer's name. P.S. Guess who is going to star in the movie version of "Magic"? Right! Ann-Margret.

NO ACTION: New York must seem to be a very inhospitable place to actor Marcello Mastroianni. We saw him recently trying to get into Regine's, the elegant discotheque. First, the man at the door wasn't too anxious to let Marcello and his buddy in, probably not recognizing the actor. Finally, he got past the door ad sank into one of the plush divans. All evening Mastroianni tried to get passing girls to go out with him, but they were all rather occupied. Finally, at 4 a.m., with Regine's closing, the actor found a model who was willing to continue on to some other nightspots with him.

Q: You've mentioned that Richard Dreyfuss is a hot Hollywood property, so then how come he would do a TV movie like one of the Entebbe films I saw him in? — A. McQ, San Diego

BERLIN SUBWAY SYSTEM West's Trains Roll Under Wall

By STEPHEN H. MULLER

Associated Press Radio

BERLIN (AP) — Dim lights burn in stations closed for 16 years, billboards stand empty and guards watch for passengers who never come.

Dust and dirt cover a sign announcing City Center and black marble columns stand unnoticed beneath Bernauer Street.

At Rosenthaler Square, a lonely advertisement promotes a hair style out of fashion for more than a decade.

Every day, thousands of West Berliners ride virtually unnoticed beneath East Berlin's main square at Alexanderplatz. Other thousands roll unhindered beneath the Berlin Wall guards at Checkpoint Charlie.

Years after the Wall went up, West Berlin's subway system still rolls through the old heart of Berlin, providing a 55-cent tour of an old cold war battlefield.

"Get out, anyone?" asks a boy as the bright yellow cars roll through Oranienburger Gate, one of the sealed and barricaded stations along the route. Three blue-jacketed guards stand shoulder to shoulder with automatic rifles.

Berlin's 75-year-old electric subway system was split Aug. 13, 1961, the day Communist East Germany put up the Wall.

"It only interrupted service for a few hours," says Guenther Hecht, a spokesman for the West Berlin Transit Service. "They just sealed off the stations and wouldn't let anyone come in."

More than 16 years later, the stations are still sealed, most of them ghost stops whose colored tile walls are only dimly lit by bare fluorescent tubes. In most, the only visible occupant is a single armed guard facing the trains as they roll through.

The two lines, about five miles long in all, run diagonally through the center of East Berlin, which just sits out between the West Berlin districts of Wedding and Kreuzberg.

At Alexanderplatz, showcase tourist center of East Berlin, the sealed-off platform passed by the western subway is being used to store rolls of cable. East Berlin's own subway uses a different level.

To the west, the other line runs north and northwest from Checkpoint Charlie, passing through the Friedrichstrasse railroad station — the only working stop on either route.

At Friedrichstrasse, West Berliners can get off in East Berlin and East Germans can ride west. Scores do, mostly all of them retirement-age pensioners allowed to travel and shop in the West.

Each train going into East Berlin carries a backup driver, who does double duty as a conductor at Friedrichstrasse stops.

West Berlin pays $1.3 million a year to use the tracks, a figure which is also supposed to cover maintenance performed by East Germans.

There is some complaining that the work isn't done as quickly or as well as Western officials would like. The trains move slowly, but mostly because the routes are some of the oldest and most twisting in the city.

If a train breaks down, the one behind it shoves it out. Sometimes a diesel engine has to be sent in to recover the disabled train. Passengers don't get out and East Berlin officials cooperate.

"We have an agreement with them," says Hecht. "They don't want to have to handle several hundred or a thousand people coming up in East Berlin all of a sudden."

Passengers can open the doors of the cars even when they're moving. But no one has tried to run westward through the barriers in years. And officials say the guards have had little to do but cope with capitalist drunks.

"A person gets a little confused about where he should get off," says Hecht, "or thinks his appearance in East Berlin will somehow change everything."

Some don't get home until they've been through a few days of police questioning.

"In really obvious cases," says Hecht, "the guard just stops the next train and puts him back on."

Caesar Got The Point?

ROME (AP) — Scholars think Julius Caesar was stabbed fatally with the pointed metal styl that Roman senators used to write on waxed slates, the National Geographic says.

Magazine Got Their Number

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. — A man and woman who claim their telephone number appeared on the cover of the National Lampoon magazine with words urging readers to call it "for a good time" have sued the humor magazine for $150,000. Samuel and Winnie Tappert said Thursday that since the number appeared on the July issue they have received numerous obscene, embarrassing and prank phone calls. The cover portrays a crudely drawn nude woman against a public bathroom wall covered with graffiti, including the Tapperts' phone number. A production number for the New York-based magazine said the number was a smudged version of the Lampoon's own number, which is slightly different from the Tapperts'. No area code was given.

October 30 Is Trick Or Treat Day In Lakeside

LAKEVILLE — The Village of Lakeside Association has set Oct. 30 from 6-8 p.m. for trick or treating in Lakeside.

The association also will host its annual Halloween party for children through age 12, Oct. 30, at 2 p.m. in the United Methodist Youth Center, Lakeside.

There will be entertainment, refreshments and prizes for costumes. There will also be a pumpkin decorating contest and movies, an association spokesman said.

Patriots Hand Colts First Loss

Dallas, Denver Unbeaten

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
"I don't believe in lead-ins," Denver Coach Coach Red Miller said.

Coach Tom Landry and his Dallas Cowboys might do well to listen to the man from the mile-high city.

Miller's Marvells, sky-high after their 30-7 romp over the Oakland Raiders a week ago, might have been forgiven if they'd turned in a lackluster performance in Cincinnati. But they were as tough as ever, with first and second-stringers kicking in to kick the Bengals 24-13.

That left them the only unbeaten team in the National Football League's American Conference. The Cowboys hold that distinction in the National Conference — but it wasn't easy staying that way. After emotional victories over divisional rivals St. Louis and Washington the past two weekends, Dallas looked flat against Philadelphia and only a blocked punt, converted into a touchdown, enabled the Cowboys to nose out the Eagles 16-10.

In Sunday's other action it was New England 17, Baltimore 3; San Francisco 28, Detroit 7; Kansas City 21, San Diego 16; St. Louis 49, New Orleans 31; Oakland 28, the New York Jets 27; Pittsburgh 27, Houston 10; Atlanta 16, Chicago 10; Miami 31, Seattle 13; Cleveland 27, Buffalo 16; Green Bay 13, Tampa Bay 0, and the New York Giants 17, Washington 6. Minnesota visits Los Angeles tonight.

"The mark of a good team is when reserves have to come in," Miller said — and he knew what he was talking about. Craig Morton, who had teamed with Jack Delin on an 81-yard go-ahead TD play late in the first half, went out with an injury. The Broncos could have collapsed — but second-year quarterback Craig Penrose kept them moving, directing a 63-yard touchdown drive in the fourth period to lock matters up.

"We're glad to be 6-0 after that one," Landry said of the Cowboys' squeaker in Philadelphia. "We were flat after St. Louis and Washington back-to-back. That takes a lot out of a team."

The Cowboys were sputtering along before Jay Saldi and Charlie Waters woke them up. Saldi blocked a Spike Jones punt in the fourth period and Waters ran the ball 17 yards for what turned out to be the winning touchdown.

"It wasn't the whole season but it was darn close to it," quarterback Steve Grogan said after he completed 11 of 16 passes for 214 yards and a touchdown against the Colts. "I played a smarter game than I have in a long time."

While Grogan had plenty of time to pass, Bert Jones was kept busy by the Patriots' swarming offense and never got Baltimore moving.

Kansas City took a lot longer before breaking into the win column.

With barely 2 1/2 minutes to play, San Diego led 16-7. But Tony Reed built in from one yard out to cut the margin to two points and, a scant 31 seconds later, safety Tim Gray dashed 36 yards with Rickey Young's fumble for the TD that sent the Chiefs home happy.

Nel Gray caught passes from quarterback Jim Hart and running back Terry Metcalf for touchdowns and Wayne Morris scored four times on short-yardage runs in St. Louis' wideopen victory. Bobby Scott passed for two touchdowns for the Saints, who wiped out the Cardinals' 21-0 lead, then fell back again.

Oakland wiped out the Jets' 27-14 lead as Ken Stabler fired his second and third touchdown passes of the game, fourth-quarter strikes to Fred Biletnikoff and Mike Stant. Stabler was virtually overshadowed by New York's young Richard Todd, who threw four TD strikes. A missed extra point by Pat Leahy was the final margin.

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw paid Houston back for his injury in a loss to the Oilers two weeks ago. With his left wrist in a cast, his right arm threw two touchdown passes.

Dan Pastorini, the Oilers' quarterback also injured in that earlier game, should have missed this one. The Steelers stole five of his passes.

Bob Griese hit Nat Moore with a pair of key passes, one of them for a touchdown, the other setting up one of Dan Nottingham's two scoring runs to the Dolphins' rout of Seattle.

Brian Sipe passed for two touchdowns, one of them a deflected 32-yarder to Paul Warfield, in Cleveland's victory over Buffalo. The Bills got 99 yards from O.J. Simpson.

Tampa Bay, in an instant replay of 1976, remains the only winless team in the NFL. The Packers did them in an Easter Marcol's second-period field goals of 40 and 44 yards and Eric Torkelson's five-yard TD run following a third-quarter blocked kick.

The Giants, who rallied to beat Washington in their opening game of the season, did it again. They wiped out the Redskins' 6-0 halftime lead as Doug Kattar sprinted 17 yards for one TD and Joe Pisarcik passed 23 yards to Jimmy Robinson for another.

AIRBORNE: Tony Dorsett (33) of the Dallas Cowboys is flipped high in the air by Philadelphia Eagles linebacker Frank LeMaster in the final period of Sunday's NFL game in Philadelphia. The flip spoiled the Cowboys try for a touchdown, but set up a Dallas field goal. Dallas won the game 16-10 to remain unbeaten in the NFC. (AP Wirephoto)

Falcons' Defense Superb
Payton Stopped; Bears Beaten, 16-10

CHICAGO (AP) — Atlanta Falcons Coach Leeman Bennett doesn't know how long his team can rely on its defense to win games. But in the meantime, he says he's content with churning out victories such as Sunday's over the Chicago Bears.

"I don't know how long we can hold up like this. I know that there are going to be some games when we are going to have to score some more points," Bennett said Sunday after the Falcons turned in a stellar defensive performance in a 16-10 National Football League triumph.

"We can't continue to win with these low scores, but I'll take a win anyway I can get it."

The Atlanta defense forced five Chicago turnovers, four of which were converted into scoring drives by the offense, and held Walter Payton, the NFL's leading rusher, to only 18 yards on 24 carries.

But what helped the Falcons meet was the punting of John James, who booted six punts inside the Chicago 13-yard line to help keep the pressure on the Bears' offense.

"I think James is the outstanding punter in the NFL," said Bennett. "Any time you consistently make your opponents start inside their 20-yard line you stand to win the ballgame."

"We wanted to limit the number of times Payton carried the ball and make sure he didn't break for a big one. It worked last year and we came out okay this year, too," said

Bennett.

Last season, the Falcons limited Payton, who had gained better than 100 yards in four games this year, to 86 yards in a 10-0 victory over the Bears.

Chicago Coach Jack Pardee called the Atlanta defense "a talented aggressive group," but insisted that his defense played "just as well, although our turnovers kept our backs against the wall."

"Our defense held up very well, but there is only so much you can do when the offense turns the ball over within scoring range," said Pardee.

"We made too many mistakes, that's all you can say," Pardee added. "You can't give them the breaks we give them and expect to win."

Three of the Chicago turnovers — an interception, a blocked punt and a fumble — set up field goals of 32, 44 and 21 yards by Nick Mike-Mayer, who snapped a string of six straight misses. A fourth turnover — another fumble — set up the Falcons' only touchdown.

Decatur State Champ!

POTTERVILLE — Placing three girls in the top nine, Decatur captured the Class C girls state cross country meet here Saturday.

The meet is not sanctioned by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

The Raiders finished with 41 points to edge Mt. Clemens 1-Anse Creuse North, which had 46 points. Eau Claire was seventh with 83.

Decatur used two standouts from the girls basketball team to key its victory. One of the girls, Kathy Stanbeck, was ninth and the other, Judy Davis, came in 33rd. It marked the first time Davis had ever run in a cross country meet.

"That was really the key," Decatur coach

Ken Klinkers said. "Judy had never run in a meet before, but she had run the course. She's one of those 100 per cent people. I had hoped she could break 21 minutes and she did."

Kathy Stiebold led Decatur, coming in second in 18:06. Mary Perez was third and Linda Strasser 16th. Shepherd's Nora Green won the race in 17:57.

Susan Trull of Buchanan finished 12th. Ann Arbor won the Class A title, with Class B going to Livonia Ladywell and Class D to Potterville.

Shella Varga of River Valley was fourth in the Class B race.

AGONY OF DEFEAT: Philadelphia Eagles linebacker Bill Bergy grits his teeth as he sits on the bench with an ice pack on his injured hand Sunday. He didn't get much comfort from his team either as the Eagles were beaten by Dallas, 16-10. (AP Wirephoto)

Lincoln Standout Sub At Western Broncos Blitz Marshall

BY PAUL MORGAN
Staff Sports Writer

KALAMAZOO — Western Michigan University's head football coach Elliot Uzelac said at the start of this season that he wouldn't lose a thing by playing either Keith Rogien or Doug Lincoln at fullback.

Lincoln isn't making a far out of his coach.

The St. Joseph griddle hit the century mark for the second straight game, gaining 107 yards on 17 carries and scoring a touchdown, to help Western crush Marshall 53-29 before an estimated 22,000 fans at Waldo Stadium Saturday.

Rogien, an Eau Claire native and the team's offensive captain, went down early with a knee injury last week against Toledo. Lincoln responded with his first career 100-yard game, totaling 136 yards on 17 totes.

Meanwhile, Jerome Persell is starting to pick up where he left off last season. The junior spexider gained 234 yards on 34 carries and scored four touchdowns as the Broncos upped their overall mark to 3-1.

"Until last week, it's been a wait-and-see kind of season for Lincoln. 'It was kind of frustrating not playing,' Lincoln said. 'But you've got to go with who the coach says. And Keith and I are good friends.'

"This was a big confidence boost for me. I wanted to have a good game."

Uzelac and his coaching staff obviously have a lot of confidence in Lincoln. With Rogien out, they picked Lincoln to be the honorary offensive captain.

"I'm just super pleased with Lincoln's play," beamed Uzelac. "When you lose someone like Rogien, you lose a hell of a good football player. But Doug has done just great."

Lincoln proved he can take the beating a fullback gets. He got his bell rung and banged up his shoulder, but he never missed more than two offensive plays on either occasion. "He's a real tough kid," Uzelac declared.

Western Michigan's offensive line looked like a bunch of seasoned veterans, rather than the patched-up crew they are. "Our line blocking was just great," Lincoln stated. "The offense line is getting better. This is the second game they've played together and now we're starting to get some of the injured players back."

The Broncos gained 444 yards on the ground and 134 through the air for 578 total offensive yards. The school record is 636 yards set in 1916 against Grand Rapids Vets.

"This team's coming back," Lincoln said. "Like the coach said, we have to play over the adversity, because we're good. We have to keep on working every week and take 'em one at a time."

The Broncos didn't have any trouble with the Thundering Herd, now 2-5 on the season. Western pulled to a 29-7 first quarter lead and increased that to 31-7 at the half. The 53 points is the most WMU has scored since it beat Washington University of St. Louis, Mo., 78-0 in 1959 — 113 games ago.

The 82 total points is the most scored in a WMU game since the Broncos beat Wayne State 88-0 in 1919.

Three new records were set in the game. Persell, just a junior, became Western's top career running back with 2,247 yards and the new career rushing attempts leader with 411.

Kicker Alton Laupp set a new mark of 20 straight PAT kicks in a career. Last week, he broke the single season consecutive streak of 13.

Quarterback Albert Little, Craig Frazier and Persell all scored touchdowns in the first quarter, along with a Laupp 28-yard field goal and a safety.

Lincoln notched his TD in the second quarter on a one yard run. Persell then scored the next three Broncos six-pointers.

Western picked a good day to turn on the juke. The homecoming crowd was the with largest in WMU history.

Persell's 200-plus yardage game was the third time in his career he's accomplished the feat — with two of them coming against Marshall. This is also the third time he has scored four TD's in a game.

Champ Delton Dumps Bangor

BANGOR — Delton clinched the Kalamazoo Valley Association football title with a 56-8 win over Bangor here Saturday night.

The Panthers are now 6-0 in the KVA and 5-1 overall. The Vikings drop to 0-6 and 1-6.

Bangor didn't help itself any watched Delton pile up 26 points in the third stanza to put the game away.

The Gary Adams-to-David Sarters combination clicked again for the Vikings. Sarters snared a 14-yard scoring pass in the second quarter for the Vikings' only score.

Sarters has now caught 28 passes for 480 yards and five touchdowns this season.

Spartans Bump Badgers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — His Wisconsin team may have displayed a singular lack of offensive punch for a second consecutive week, but Coach John Jardine says he's not ready to junk the Badger multiple formation offense and start over.

"Our offense is a good one; it's just got to be executed,"

Statistics

Penalties-Yards	9-111	4-47

Jardine said after Michigan State dumped the Badgers 9-7 in a Big Ten football game that somewhat soured the homecoming festivities here Saturday.

The loss came a week after Michigan humiliated the Badgers 38-0, and Jardine said the timing was especially bad, considering next weekend's opponent: Ohio State at Columbus where the Badgers have not won since 1918.

"It's going to be a tough deal," Jardine admitted, referring to the prospects against the Badgers.

The coach said the loss was even worse considering Minnesota's 16-0 upset victory over Michigan. A victory could have kept his Badgers in the thick of the conference race.

Instead, the Badgers slipped to a 3-2 conference mark (3-2 overall), compared with Ohio State at 4-0 and Michigan at 3-1. Michigan State is 3-1-1 and in third place in the Big Ten.

In Saturday's game, the Michigan State defense allowed Wisconsin a mere 34 yards rushing. In the air, the Badgers made 216 yards — half of that after backup quarterback Mike Kalasnik came in for the last minutes of the game.

The Spartans rushed for 171 yards but passed for only 63.

"Talasnik, who replaced starter Anthony Dudley with 8:30 left, connected with David Charles on a 31-yard scoring pass play with 1:42 to play. One play earlier, Kalasnik passed to Tom Braker for 33 yards on fourth and 18 from the Wisconsin 45.

After the TD, the Badgers attempted an onside kick. But former Lakeshore All-Stater Charlie Shafer recovered the kick to end Wisconsin's hopes.

Michigan State's Jim Earley rushed for 100 yards, including a 25-yard ramble that set up a one-yard scoring run by Leroy McGee with 2:06 left in the second quarter. Hans Nielsen kicked a 51-yard first quarter field goal to put the Spartans in front 3-0.

Jardine claimed his team had lost its spark on offense.

For instance, said the coach, "we didn't protect our passer. We missed blocks on critical situations. Our backs didn't block for each other. It was a total breakdown. It wasn't any one guy."

"The performance of our offensive line was horrible," Badger offensive line coach Thip Backhus added. "Their stunting was our biggest frustration."

Michigan State defensive tackle Larry Bethea explained that his team used the stunting tactic to advantage early in the game.

"They were double-teaming us when we stunted, and this freed our linemen," Bethea said.

Once Wisconsin trailed 9-0, "we knew they had to pass," he said, and the coaches then advised him to "cut loose."

"I just rushed hard from the outside and said to myself, 'Here I come, hello,'" Bethea said.

The Wonderful World of Sports:

It was a basketball game between the Los Angeles Lakers and the Milwaukee Bucks. As is sometimes the case, physical contact intensified between the rival centers, 7-foot-2½ Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Lakers and rookie Kent Benson of the Bucks.

Benson stuck an elbow in Jabbar's mid-section, so says Jabbar, who proceeded to lay a round-house right on Benson's left eye. Result: small wound and concussion for Benson, fractured right hand and unprecedented $8,000 fine for Jabbar.

Another site, another game: the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cincinnati Bengals are involved in a nationally televised Monday night football game in the NFL. Mel Morgan of the Bengals throws a forearm into the face of John Stallworth, a Pittsburgh receiver, who has just caught a pass. Result: penalty for unsportsmanlike conduct against Morgan, a mild concussion for Stallworth.

Moments later Mel Blount of the Steelers knocks tight end Bob Trumpy to the ground on a pass play and, seeing it on TV, Commissioner Pete Rozelle interpreted it as unnecessary roughness.

He called both Morgan and Blount onto the carpet.

Excessive, unnecessary violence has become the concern of all administrators of contact sports. Hockey players have all their teeth knocked out before they are old enough to vote. The games often turn into fistfights that leave heads bashed and limbs battered. Stretcher bearers wait on the sidelines at football games to haul the wounded away.

Within the past two weeks newspaper readers have been appalled by tales of how this thirst for blood is enhanced at the lowest grade school and high school level. One coach, seeking to instill his young pupils in violence, had them paint live chickens the colors of the rival team and kick them around in practice. Another coach sought to steel his minions by biting off the heads of live frogs.

As the late Vince Lombardi once said, "Winning isn't the only thing — it's everything."

Baseball carries on, almost changeless. Only the fans get violent.

During the World Series last week, this conversation was overheard between two ladies queuing up at a cash register in a big department store.

"What's a Bucky Dent?" one of them said.

"Bucky Dent is the name of the Yankee shortstop," the companion replied.

"Is he a grown man?"

"Sure, he must be 27 or 28 years old."

"That's what I don't understand about the World Series."

the confused woman said. "All these silly little boy names ... Bucky ... Willie ... Reggie ... Calfish. Why don't they have grown-up names?"

"I don't know," the other lady said. "Even the managers. One is called Billy and the other Tommy."

"Seems silly to me."

One of the fascinations of our great national pastime — it's still a little boy's game.

It is so simple that the tiniest of tykes not only can play it but can understand it.

No intricate formations. Few subtleties.

Grown men, some of them making more money than the chairman of the board of AT&T, play it in short pants and foolish-looking caps. The game itself seems to reduce them to their childhood.

They fuss and fight, like kids on the corner lot. They harbor petty jealousies. They collide on the base paths and come up swinging. They do things they wouldn't think of doing in the business world.

Unlike football and hockey, where competitors are covered with armor like ancient knights, baseball players have their emotions laid bare before the live crowd and TV cameras.

The joy, the disappointment, the sweat — it's all there out in the open to see.

Jerry Pate Easily Takes Southern Open

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — It was no secret, but Jerry Pate confirmed it anyway after walking to the $125,000 Southern Open golf tournament championship by seven strokes, the largest winning margin of the season.

"I knew nobody was going to catch me after the sixth hole," said the grinning 24-year-old from Pensacola, Fla.

What the 1976 U.S. Open champion, in only his second year on the tour, did Sunday was birdie four of those six holes to take a five-shot lead over Johnny Miller, who was second entering the final round only three shots back.

"I was two under through six holes and still found myself five shots behind," said Miller, winner of 17 tournaments but winless in nearly 30 months.

"That sorta knocked the wind out of my sails," said the 30-year-old Miller.

It knocked it out of the rest of the field, too.

Pate, winning his fourth tournament in his brief pro career, led from wire to wire, shooting rounds 64, 67, 69 and 68 to finish 14-under-par over the hilly par 70, 6,781-yard Green Island Country Club course.

Miller stumbled in with a 70, bogeying three of his final five holes to gain a share of second place with defending champion Mac McLendon. Steve Taylor and Phil Hancock, a former University of Alabama teammate of Pate's.

McLendon had a 68, Taylor and Hancock had 69s. Another

Texas Expects No. 1 Ranking

This week, Coach Bill Schembechler won't have to ask the media to drop his Michigan Wolverines from the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college football ratings.

Early in the season, Schembechler said he wished the voters would do him a favor and vote someone else No. 1. They heeded his request when Michigan struggled past Navy 14-7 but a 41-3 rout of highly regarded Texas A&M put the Wolverines back on top and they've been there ever since.

Until last Saturday. In a stunning upset, Michigan not only was beaten by Minnesota 16-0 but failed to score for the first time in 114 games. That opened the door for second-ranked Texas and the Longhorns fully expect to be No. 1 this week following a 30-14 triumph over Southern Methodist.

"Now that we're No. 1, we're going to have to work to stay there," said kick returner Johnnie Johnson, anticipating this week's AP poll.

Even Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine inquired how the voting might go after the 11th-ranked Irish shocked No. 5 Southern California 49-19, handing the Trojans their worst pounding since a 51-0 rout at the hands of Notre Dame 11 years ago.

And Alabama's Bear Bryant, whose third-ranked Crimson Tide wallpopped Louisville 55-6, had No. 1 on his mind.

"If we just win our games I think we'll win the national championship," he said.

Elsewhere, fourth-ranked Ohio State trimmed Northwestern 35-15, No. 6 Oklahoma flattened No. 18 Iowa State 35-16. No. 18 Nebraska whipped No. 7 Colorado 31-15. No. 8 Kentucky buried Georgia 33-0. No. 9 Arkansas trounced Houston 34-0 and No. 10 Penn State downed West Virginia 48-23.

In the Second Ten, No. 12 Texas A&M beat Rice 28-14. No. 14 Pitt held off Syracuse 28-21. UCLA edged No. 15 California 21-19. No. 17 Brigham Young shaded Wyoming 10-7. No. 19 Florida scored 10 points in the final 1:32 to defeat Tennessee 27-17 and No. 20 Clemson tipped North Carolina State 7-3.

Texas Tech, the No. 13 team, was the only member of the Top Twenty to have the weekend off. The Red Raiders face Texas next Saturday.

Texas had problems with

SMU for a while. The Longhorns fell behind on Mike Ford's 11-yard touchdown pass to Emanuel Tolbert in the second period but scored 20 points in the last six minutes before halftime and were never headed.

Leading the way was Earl Campbell, who rambled through the rain for a career-high 213 yards, including a 55-yard touchdown run.

Michigan's Wolverines were held to just 80 yards on the ground — "That's unheard of," Schembechler said — although junior quarterback Rick Leach became the school's all-time total offense leader.

"The defense (Minnesota's) beat us," Schembechler continued. "That, plus an offense (Michigan's) that never showed its stuff. I've never seen us play that poorly."

Alabama crushed Louisville as Jeff Rutledge hit Ozzie Newsome with touchdown passes of 67 and 32 yards while Tony Nathan ran 71 yards for one score and set up another with a 51-yard punt return.

Quarterback Rod Gerald and running backs Ron Springs and Jeff Logan provided the big plays for Ohio State and freshman fullback Joel Payton plowed across for two touchdowns as the Buckeyes defeated Northwestern.

Kenny King, back after a shoulder injury, rushed for 141 yards to pace Oklahoma past Iowa State and into undisputed possession of first place in the Big Eight. T.M. Hipp gained 173 yards as Nebraska turned back Colorado. Derrick Ramsey passed for three TDs as Kentucky handed Georgia only its third shutout in 14 years under Coach Vince Dooley. Tim Calcagni's two scoring passes to Charles Clay 95 seconds apart helped Arkansas whip Houston and Penn State stretched its domination of West Virginia to 22 years — 21 victories and one tie.

Cass Golfers Fifth

Cassopolis finished fifth Saturday in the Class C state golf meet at Oak Lane Country Club in Webberville.

The Rangers totalled 321, their best score of the year, but wound up one stroke away from third. Goodrich took the title with an incredible 300. Pysano-Westphalia was second at 312 and Edmore-Montabella and Grand Rapids Forest Hills Northern tied for third at 320.

Doug Allen of Goodrich was medalist with a three-over-par 71. Ken Willard was the top Cass golfer with a 78. Jim Loupee added a 79, Ron Haggan an 81 and Tom Lowe an 83.

The Rangers did finish ahead of both teams from their regional, Hamilton, which won the regional, finished far back with a 343 and Middleville had a 336.

Birmingham Brother Rice won the Class A meet and Detroit Country Day took Class D honors. Brother Rice had a 322 total at Battle Creek and Country Day finished at 381 at Grand Rapids.

Vets Close On Ressler

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — A trio of seasoned veterans had moved to within 34 pins of leader Eddie Ressler going into today's 5th-round action in the $60,000 Buzz Fazio Open Professional Bowlers Association tournament at Nottke's Bowl.

The leader since the first round, Ressler began Sunday's 4th-round play with a 182 pin lead but saw the margin dwindle to 17 pins over Roy Buckley of Columbus, Ohio, as Ressler averaged only 208 and won but three of eight match play games.

Ressler, of Allentown, Pa., rolled games of 199, 223, 226, 170, 234, 233, 192 and 187 Sunday. He also received 90 bonus pins for his three match play victories, giving him a 26 game total pinfall of 5,008.

Buckley, who has won five titles in nine years on the PBA tour, averaged 227 for his eight games and posted a 6-2 record as he jumped from fifth place. His 26 game pinfall was 5,981.

Don Bell of Santa Maria, Calif., dropped from second to third, 31 pins behind the leader. Winless in eight years on the PBA tour, Bell averaged 218 and won five of eight match play games. His 26 game pinfall was 5,989.

Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa, a three-time career champion, made the biggest move of the 24 finalists by going from 23d to fourth, 34 pins behind Ressler. Berlin won seven of eight match play games and averaged 235, the best of the finalists. His pinfall was 5,974.

Two-time defending champion Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., averaged only 204 and dropped from 12th to 14th. His pinfall was 5,744.

Fifth and 6th rounds in the Fazio tourney were to be held today. First prize is $5,000.

Leafs Rough Up Flyers

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philadelphia Flyers and Toronto Maple Leafs seem to have picked up where they left off in the National Hockey League playoffs last year.

The teams met in the Stanley Cup quarter-finals last April with the Flyers winning the best-of-seven series in six roughly-played games. In their weekend home-and-home set, the play was just as rough — 14 penalty minutes Saturday night, 123 Sunday night.

But for this weekend, anyway, the Maple Leafs hold the edge. They beat the Flyers 6-1 at Toronto and 6-3 at Philadelphia Sunday night.

"I'm sure," said Philadelphia center Orest Kondrachuk, "they remember last year."

The Leafs may have remembered they took big leads in some contests and watched the Flyers come back to win during the quarter-finals. Sunday night, Toronto took leads of 3-0 and 4-1, then saw Philadelphia pull within 4-2 and 4-3.

"When we got within one goal," said Flyers center Bobby Clarke, "I guess we thought it would be automatic that they would fold. But if you look back on the weekend, you'll see that we only played one period out of six. That doesn't win."

"We all know our history against the Flyers," said new Toronto Coach Roger Neilson. In other NHL games Sunday night, the Montreal Canadiens downed the New York Rangers 6-2, the Vancouver Canucks tied the Boston Bruins 3-3, the Chicago Black Hawks blanked the St. Louis Blues 2-0, the Buffalo Sabres topped the Minnesota North Stars 4-1 and the Pittsburgh Penguins trimmed the Cleveland Barons 3-2.

Third-period goals by Pat Buntette and Jack Valiquette put down the Flyers, who had pulled within 4-3 on tallies by Bob Kelly, Reggie Leach and Don Saleski.

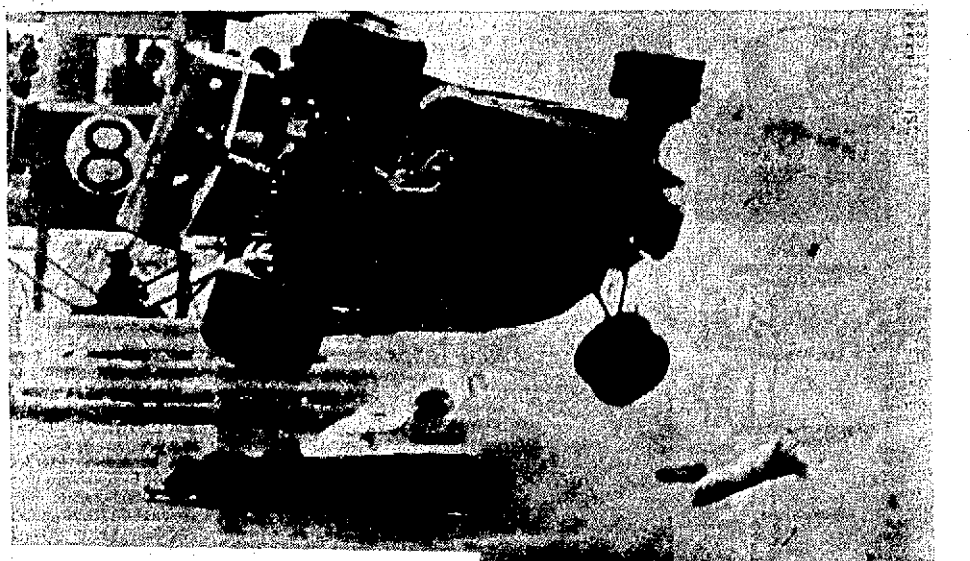

The unimpaired Canadiens got two goals each from Pete Mahovich and Jacques Lemaire to record their fifth victory, with one tie, in their first six games this year. Steve Shutt and Larry Robinson had the other tallies for the defending champions.

Mike Walton scored with 24 seconds remaining to give Vancouver its tie with Boston. Peter McNab had two goals for the Bruins.

Jean Savard and Pierre Plante scored to back Tony Esposito's shutout and help Chicago hand St. Louis its sixth straight loss.

Jocelyn Gueymont and Dan Luce scored first-period goals to carry Buffalo past Minnesota, which also suffered its sixth loss in a row.

Third-period tallies by Hartland Monahan and Brian Spencer lifted Pittsburgh over Cleveland.

DISASTROUS CRASH: Two people were killed when the Ferrari 312T2 of Gilles Villeneuve flipped over the Tyrrel P34 driven by Ronnie Peterson of Sweden at the Fuji International Speedway Sunday. The accident at the Japan Grand Prix happened at the first corner on the sixth lap. James Hunt of England won the race, the last Formula 1 battle of the season. (AP Wirephoto)

Suns Overcome Big Laker Lead

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers are going to have a difficult time playing better than they did in the first half of Sunday night's game against Phoenix. And it's doubtful they'll be ever be much worse than they were in the second half.

The Suns overcame a 62-38 deficit at halftime to score a 104-101 National Basketball Association victory in the Lakers' home opener before 10,481 at The Forum.

In the only other NBA game Sunday, the San Antonio Spurs crushed the Seattle SuperSonics 112-94.

Los Angeles raced to a 30-12 advantage after one quarter and led by 26 points late in the second period. But the second half was a different story.

"We put on a clinic in the first half and couldn't do anything right in the second half," said Los Angeles Coach Jerry West. "This pretty much indicates the way we have been playing this season — that is getting an early lead and not holding it."

"I told my team at halftime that we couldn't get it all back at once and to be patient," said Phoenix Coach John McLeod. McLeod was right. The Suns needed 15:33 to deadlock the game, tying it at 81 on a jump shot by rookie Walter Davis with 8:27 remaining.

Paul Westphal sparked Phoenix' second-half surge, scoring 19 of his game-high 26 points. Alvan Adams, who made only 2 of 17 field goal attempts in the first half, was 4-for-8 after the intermission. He finished with 12 points and a team-leading 13 rebounds.

Earl Tatum led the Lakers with 20 points. Kermit Washington had 16 points and 21 rebounds, but scored 14 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in the first half.

With 15 seconds left in the game and the Lakers trailing 103-99, Washington missed three free throw attempts.

Davis scored 17 points, 14 coming in the second half.

Larry Kenon scored 28 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to pace San Antonio's victory over Seattle.

George Gervin added 20 points for the Spurs, who evened their record at 2-2, while Billy Paulz and Mark Oberding had 16 apiece. The Sonics were paced by Bruce Seals, who scored 19 points.

French Leftist Surge Falters

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — A bitter quarrel over the socialist blueprint for France has broken the momentum of a leftist surge toward power that until recently looked unstoppable.

"They've blown what could possibly have been a sure thing," said one diplomat. "There's no doubt about it."

Opinion polls, which for months predicted that 53-54 per cent of the vote would go to the Socialist-Communist alliance in the National Assembly elections next March have switched in a 50-50 standoff with President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's center-right majority.

The leaders of the Socialist, Communist and Leftist Radical parties have broken off public contact for the moment in irreconcilable discord over how they would govern France if their Leftist Union was elected.

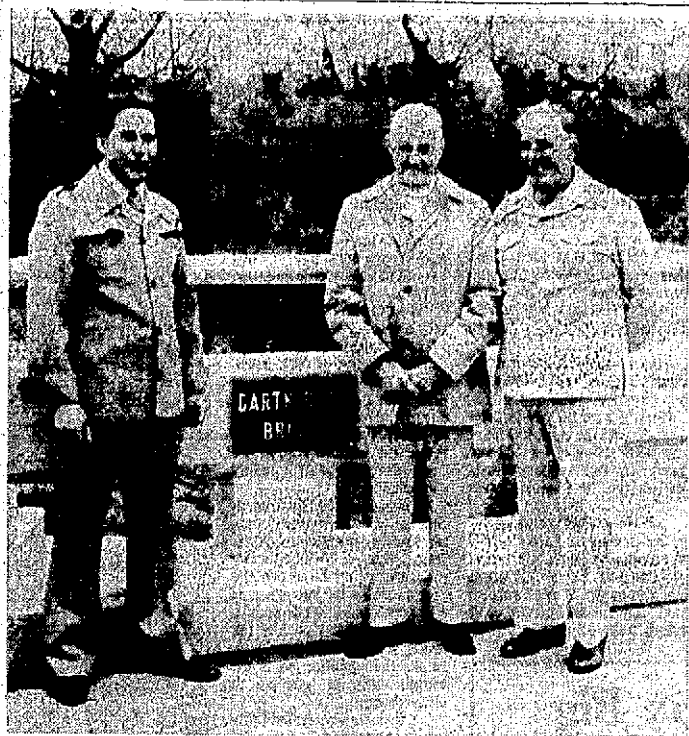

Socialist leader François Mitterrand said recently his main concern now is "to make sure of victory for the Socialist party, since for the time being we can't make sure of victory for the entire left."

This is a drastic change from last summer, when a leftist victory seemed such a sure bet that fearful small businessmen were trying to get their savings out of the country.

Five months remain before the elections; developments could reverse the trend before then. But as it stands, the left seems to be floundering in search of new tactics.

The dissatisfaction that had given the leftists their early boost remains intense, however. Inflation is running around 10 percent a year and unemployment is at a record 1.2 million. French tradition has been clashing with the demands of a modern economy.

As a result, some observers

Boost In Jobless Tax Bitter Pill For Business

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan business is swallowing legislation to increase unemployment taxes like bitter medicine — the alternative is worse.

The alternative in this case would be a slowly increasing federal tax to force Michigan to pay off its whopping unemployment compensation debt. As much as business hates to see taxes go up, it clearly sees the state legislation as the lesser of two evils.

The bill, which is slated for final approval in the Senate this week, revises the state's tax system to pay benefits to out-of-work residents.

It was prompted by two related problems: the inability of Michigan businesses to keep up with jobless pay demands during the recent recession, and the need to pay off a $624 million debt to Washington. The state had to borrow the money to keep paying unemployment benefits when its jobless rate skyrocketed at the height of the recession.

The bill is designed to do several things:

- Get the financing of Michigan's unemployment compensation system back on solid ground to meet future demands of those out of work.
- Pay off the federal debt, one of the four or five largest in the nation.
- Base taxes on a business' record in laying off workers, rewarding firms with a stable work force.
- Make every business share the burden to some degree, and provide a tax which does not damage the business climate in Michigan.

Congress could pass legislation "forgiving" such debts, but because a majority of states have either no debt or small ones, experts feel that is unlikely.

The Senate bill would establish new unemployment compensation taxes for Michigan employers.

In general, firms with a stable work force — few layoffs in recent years — will pay about the same tax or slightly less. Employers who have been forced to lay off a lot of employees during the past few years would pay more.

The new tax would be based on three parts — a uniform component; a component reflecting a company's whole history of layoffs; and the largest factor, a company's record over the most recent five years.

The formula would determine a firm's tax, ranging from 1 percent to 9 percent. The tax is levied on the first $8,000 of wages paid each employee — which is to be raised from the current $5,400.

If the state takes no action by Nov. 10, the federal government will begin reducing a tax "credit" allowed the state in the federal unemployment compensation law. That would boost the federal levy from its current seven-tenths of a percent by three-tenths of a percent a year until the debt was paid off.

That penalty still may be applied if the state enacts a new funding system, but will be delayed for three years to give Michigan a chance to pay off the deficit.

Carter's Welfare Reform Plan Shaky

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

President Carter's welfare plan has been before Congress for scarcely seven weeks, and people already are talking about a salvage operation.

At hearings before the special House welfare subcommittee last week, witnesses casually talked about what might be saved from the overall $30.2 billion welfare package.

Nobody agreed on what should be salvaged any more than they agreed what should be abandoned.

But the widespread uneasiness with the cost, the lack of guarantee of jobs for all poor persons wanting them or the low level of benefits has raised the specter that Carter's plan faces the same conflicting expectations that killed former President Richard Nixon's proposed welfare reform.

Brookings economist Richard

Nathan, who says the present welfare system has been finetuned to rid it of most errors, says the early enthusiastic reactions to Carter's plan were misleading.

"The governors, in particular, were quite eager to see some fiscal relief coming their way," Nathan said. But after hard study of the details, many "are coming forward now with questions and with criticisms, and quite a few people, myself included, conclude that this really isn't a good approach."

Governors and other state officials are among the 80 witnesses scheduled to testify in the weeks ahead. But some key groups already have been heard.

The unions are skeptical that the private sector jobs will exist in the numbers the administration says they will. They are afraid that the 1.4 million publicly funded jobs for welfare recipients will be make-work jobs or, worse, be genuine jobs paying only the minimum wage that will compete with jobs paying higher wages held by unionized city or county workers.

Women's groups are skeptical disabled and blind persons "need only an active job training and placement program in order to become employable."

And the President's prime Senate sponsor, New York Democrat Daniel Patrick

Moynihan, says that despite his initial praise he now has read the fine print and finds the program "gravely disappointing."

Some critics say Moynihan is retreating against the White House after not getting a guarantee of immediate fiscal aid in New York City, but whatever his motives, his turn-around dramatically focused attention on the problems Carter faces in getting his program through.

Rep. James C. Conahan, D-Calif., chairman of the special House welfare subcommittee, says he isn't discouraged by the considerable criticism thus far in the hearings.

"I realized that each group has its own stake in this and that a welfare reform plan is full of conflicting interests as the tax code," Conahan said in an interview.

"But I would ask any of them: do you like this better than what you have?" he said.

He also says no one is comfortable with the complexities of the jobs portion of the bill and fears over that section have to be resolved "or I wouldn't vote for it."

Conahan is disturbed that few of the Democrats have attended the all-day hearings, while most Republicans have, but he is most unhappy at the prospect that the subcommittee can't finish marking up the bill by Dec. 22 as he had planned.

Congress may not recess until mid-November, partly because of delays on the energy bill, and he's not sure he can get his members back right after Thanksgiving for another three weeks' hard work. But time will be even more scarce in January, he noted.

"The time problem leaves me very discouraged," he said. The ranking Republican, Rep. Barber Conable of New York, says he thinks it will take more time than Conahan is counting on anyway because, as a veteran of most recent attempts to revise the welfare system, he finds Carter's plan "unduly complicated."

He also said the administration has generated "an unnecessary negative reaction" from some members by misrepresenting the costs of the program, says the jobs aspect is still confusing and the plan to give the working poor a tax break if they take a private, rather than public, job is too complicated for anyone to comprehend.

But Conable says he isn't giving up on the plan.

"It will require a considerable laying on of hands by Congress, but I'm all for looking at it and trying to work something out," Conable said.

Periled By Vested Interests And Too Many Complexities that either kind of job will be provided for the bulk of the existing welfare population, women with children, and they are uncertain whether to push hard for the rest of the package.

The associations representing the 15 million blind and disabled citizens say the President's program doesn't provide high enough benefits for their constituents and, furthermore, assumes they are all unemployable. The associations said many Moynihan, says that despite his initial praise he now has read the fine print and finds the program "gravely disappointing."

Some critics say Moynihan is retreating against the White House after not getting a guarantee of immediate fiscal aid in New York City, but whatever his motives, his turn-around dramatically focused attention on the problems Carter faces in getting his

Wish Book Big On Electronics

The age of electronics is definitely here, and some of its more imaginative signs can be found in Sears' 1977 Wish Book.

The seasonal catalog, long acclaimed as a barometer of the times (in this country at least), provides enough electronic gifts to fill Santa's bag... and then some.

Like the portable 5-inch black-and-white TV with built-in AM/FM radio that operates on batteries or house current ($149). Or the calculator/clock, that sets an alarm, a clock, a stopwatch and a calculator ($50).

In the plug-in variety, the Wish Book has video devices such as: A video arcade offering no less than 27 home video games ($179); and a video music invention that hooks up to your stereo and TV to provide a home version of "Fantasia" as the sounds of the music are translated into colors and shapes on the screen ($170).

Or how about a computer chess game (that lets an average player win from 25 percent to 75 percent of the time ($190). Or, you could listen to the roar of the sirens and the bellow of police on a 10-channel, 5-band digital-entry scanner-receiver that sells for $300.

But perhaps the topper is a little $20 clock that flashes the time in easy-to-read numbers on the bedroom ceiling. Which might be just the right gift for the proverbial person who has everything.

WIDE ASSORTMENT: Even Santa finds a mind-boggling array of gift possibilities, from electronic toys and gadgets through clocks that flash the time on the ceiling. Sears '77 Christmas Wish Book has 'em.

BLOSSOMLAND LEARNING CENTER: Major roof work has been completed on Blossomland Learning Center for Berrien Intermediate School District and school officials are hopeful of meeting completion target of July, 1978. Center is being built behind intermediate headquarters in Berrien Springs to consolidate programs for mentally impaired children, replacing programs in St. Joseph and Niles. Entire cost is $2.5 million, with construction costs totaling will serve some 300 children. Supt. Raymond Sreboth said work is on schedule, but some site work has been delayed because of rainy weather. (Aerial photo by Adolph Hann)

Niles Township Board Recall Vote Tuesday

By JOHN DYE

South Berrien Bureau

NILES — Six Niles Township Board members face recall in a special election Tuesday.

The six officials facing removal from office by the voters are Clerk William Barthel, Treasurer M. Sherman Drew and Trustees Robert Jones, Charles Losensky, James Stover and James Sullivan.

Members of the Niles Township Taxpayers Association launched the recall effort with a petition drive.

Efforts by the board to block the vote appeared to be unsuccessful. The six officials had asked the Michigan Court of Appeals in Grand Rapids to grant motion for an immediate hearing on their request to block the vote, but had heard no reply. The six men turned to the appeals court after Berrien County Circuit Court Judge Zoe Burkholz dismissed the board's suit challenging the recall.

Reasons for the recall on all six ballots are identical. Those reasons are:

That the board allowed financing and implementation of a new assessment of property in the township; that the board authorized spending township funds on projects contrary to public will; and that the board failed to respond in "a timely and complete fashion" to questions posed by township residents.

The reassessment has been a sore spot with some township residents, as has spending on a sewer system in the township and funding for the Greater Niles Recreation Board.

In replying to the reasons for recall, the six board members responses are similar.

The officials claim that the new assessment has not yet been implemented, and the township supervisor, not the board, is responsible for its implementation. As to spending, Clerk Barthel said he voted against spending for the recreation board, and all board members said they approved funding for projects with the best interests of the township in mind.

All six said they felt they had responded to questions and some added they investigated answers to questions they could not respond to immediately.

Harry Siddleberg, the new township supervisor, is not subject to the recall vote. Siddleberg was named earlier this month by the board to replace John Bundy who resigned in August. Bundy had also been a recall target in petitions circulated by the taxpayer group.

Should any of the six be recalled, successors would be appointed to serve until a special election to fill the vacancies.

The election would have to be held not less than 45 days nor more than 60 days from the date of the recall.

On the interim appointees, Robert Cary, township attorney, said there were several methods for their selection. If a quorum was possible, he said, the quorum could name the appointees. If not, Cary said Gov. William Milliken could name enough to make a quorum or a special meeting of at least 12 registered voters could be called to make the appointments.

Polls will be open in the township's 11 precincts from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Packing Firm Founder William A. Burnette Dies

KEELER — William A. Burnette, 88, founder and chairman of the board of Burnette Farms Packing Co., here, died Saturday in Lee Memorial Hospital, Dowagiac.

Mr. Burnette founded Burnette Farms Packing Co., now Burnette Farms Packing Co., after World War II and it became one of the largest independent packing firms of canned fruits and vegetables in the state.

Mr. Burnette came to Keeler in 1929 after the stock market crash and began to develop some 70 acres of farmland he had purchased earlier.

He also established Cookware Co. of America, in Keeler, a utensil firm which engaged in producing aluminum castings for the Air Force during World War II.

He served as a member of the Selective Service Board during the war, also.

Mr. Burnette was born Dec. 23, 1887, in Jasper, Tenn., and was married July 28, 1913, in Spartanburg, S.C., to the former Nancy Kennedy, who survives.

Mr. Burnette, a graduate of the University of Chattanooga and the Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., was an ordained Methodist minister for five years before going into business as general sales manager for Stroh Casting Co., Detroit.

He was a founder and salesman of Club Aluminum Utensil Co., Chicago, serving as its president from 1923 to 1929 when he came to Keeler.

Funeral services will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Keeler United Methodist Church, of which he was a member. Burial will follow in the family plot at the Keeler cemetery. Friends may call at the Calvin Funeral Home, Hartford, after 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Memorials may be made to the Keeler United Methodist Church.

Surviving besides his wife are two daughters, Mrs. Ralph (Marion) Mack of Indian Lake, Dowagiac; Mrs. Virginia Mulling of Prescott, Ariz.; 13 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren, and two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Tate of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Mrs. Myrtle Morrison of Keeler.

Blue Cross Authority Is Spelled Out

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Insurance Commissioner Thomas Jones has the authority to make rules and regulate the terms of contracts between Blue Cross, Blue Shield and participating hospitals, the state attorney general said today.

In a letter to Jones, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said that while there is no specific legal provision for granting such power, the authority to make rules is implied and necessary because of other powers granted the commissioner.

Kelley said the power is necessary if Jones is to be able to fulfill his responsibilities.

Jones could use the authority to force the Blues, the state's largest health insurer, to hold down costs in contracts with hospitals.

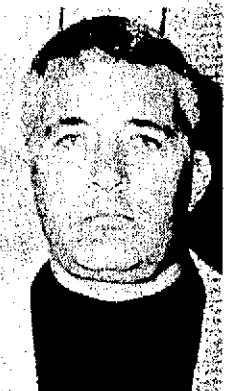

"Given the spiraling costs of health care and the less than perfect record of Blue Cross in this area, I think it is important that we have an independent regulator...able to act to ensure that everything that can be done is being done to hold down hospital costs," Kelley said.

Fiction, History Blended In New Series On PBS

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A major new public television series depicting the dramatic changes in American life in the last two decades of the 18th century will make its debut Thursday night.

Titled "The Best of Families," it portrays in fictional form but against actual events the stories of three New York City families: one of Irish immigrants, one of the religious middle class and one of economic and social position.

The producers hope the series, to run for eight weeks, will rival in critical and popular acclaim "The Adams Chronicles" and "American Short Story." The latter was recently purchased by BBC, the first full-length series shown on American public television to be bought by the British.

Handsome mounted, with authentic period costumes and furniture, a cast of hundreds is photographed much of the time in New York City streets which still contain old buildings of the 18th-19th years.

"The Best of Families" will debut in a two-hour special on Public Broadcasting Service at 9 p.m. EDT Thursday, Oct. 27. Seven subsequent one-hour episodes will be aired weekly in the same time period on the 272 stations of the PBS. Most stations will repeat the programs twice each week.

The series was funded with grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, the Ford Foundation, the Mobil Corp. and the Arthur Vinson Davis Foundation.

The endowment supported "The Adams Chronicles" and "American Short Story," as well as many lesser known programs.

"Contrary to the notion that TV corrupts scholarship, there are a growing number of American scholars who are eager to use this important medium of communication to work in a collaborative relationship with thoughtful television producers," says the endowment's new chairman, Joseph D. Duffey.

"The Best of Families" represents one of many ways in which the endowment is responding, through television, to a public that wants to know about its past and, through its past, understand the present."

The producers say the series was carefully researched, with the aid of a 14-member board of advisers, most of them historians.

The first episode revolves around the collapse of the Reading Railroad in May 1890, and what effect it had on a wealthy family whose head had devoted himself to collecting Oriental art.

A typhoid epidemic is portrayed, the opening of the Brooklyn bridge, the introduction of the telephone and the telegraph, Tammany Hall politics, the advent of unionism, the depression of 1893 and the great trolley car strike of 1893.

A researcher found Joe Smith, half of the original vaudeville team of Smith and Duke, living in an Actors' Fund Home in New Jersey. He was able to recall what Tony Pastor's, an early vaudeville house, looked like.

One of the series' families is the Raffertys, the Irish-American family suffering most and working hardest: the Lathrop-Baldwin group consisting of an idealistic architect who finally marries Sarah Baldwin, daughter of a middle class Brooklyn minister with roots in New England, and the Wheelers, firmly established in the upper strata of New York society but hurt by the railroad collapse.

There are two guides funded by the endowment, one for viewers and one primarily for classroom teachers. The 20-page viewer guide will be sent free to anyone mailing a postcard to: Guide, Box 1890, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Exclusive Club Preserves Old Country Life

ASTOR, Fla. (AP) — The huge old hunting lodge sits majestically on the edge of a lake, commanding a view of private forest land that extends for miles.

The lodge and the gracious Old English style of country life enjoyed by its infrequent visitors are the zealously guarded vestiges of an even greater era once enjoyed by the 45 members of the exclusive Juniper Hunting Club.

It's a club little known outside its membership, and members like it that way.

"There are only 45 members in the club," says resident manager Budd English. "And one must literally die before another is voted in. They meet every Wednesday in Louisville, Ky."

English would not discuss who the members were. However, he said that they once owned the entire Grandee Arredondo Spanish land grant, 23,000 acres of prime forest just west of the St. Johns River near Lake George in Central Florida.

The only means of transportation was a narrow gauge railroad which got as far as Astor. Ongoing travelers made the rest of the journey by horseback to the club site deep in the wild woods.

A sawmill cut the giant virgin pines into lumber for living quarters, bathhouses, accessory buildings and a dock jutting out into the lake.

The game was so bountiful that the club had a rule: No one could go fishing until he had first bagged two deer.

Today, the Juniper Hunting Club owns a mere one tenth of its original land grant. The federal government acquired all but the present 3,400 acres in the 1930s when the Ocala National Forest was established.

And the club members, all from Kentucky, fly into the area several times a year and travel in motorized vehicles over paved roads to reach their forest Shangri-La.

Inside the lodge, wild game trophies cover the walls, and the bricks over the fireplace have inscribed on them the names of each year's club chairman since 1909.

The skull of old "Slew Foot" rests on the mantel in the dining room. One of the club's scrapbooks contains a note penned in 1938 by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, author of "The Yearling," accepting an invitation to come to dinner.

When the book was made into a movie, much of it was filmed on the club's property and that's why the skull of the bear made famous by Miss Rawlings occupies a prominent place.

Upstairs, there are 24 beds among the double and single bedrooms that open onto the long main hallway.

The passage of time and changes in lifestyle haven't really affected the members of the Juniper Hunting Club, English says.

It's Those Little Red Ones

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jack Cornelius says he got so tired of sleeping with earplugs to muffle the din in his neighborhood that he's decided to do something about it. The retired Minneapolis advertising executive has begun a one-man crusade against noise, particularly noise from small red cars. "Strangely enough, little red cars seem to be the worst offenders," Cornelius said. Officials took decibel measurements in Cornelius' apartment, and found that the noise level is about three to four times what state standards allow. When workers came to remove diseased eels from his neighborhood, Cornelius couldn't hear their chain saws. The noise from little red cars and motorcycles blocked it out, he said. "I'm not a crank, but every place I go, people say to me, 'you're right, it bothers me, too.'"

Stock Prices Slipping

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices slipped again today as the sixth prime rate increase of the year continued its spread through the banking industry.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials lost 1.21 to 807.09 in the first half hour.

Losers outpaced gainers by a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Several banks joined today in raising their prime lending rates from 7 1/2 to 7 3/4 per cent.

The latest increase in the basic charge on blue-chip loans was initiated on Friday by New York's Citicorp.

The rising trend of short term interest rates last week brought a statement from the White House implicitly criticizing the Federal Reserve for its recent moves to tighten credit.

General Motors was the early volume leader among NYSE issues, unchanged at 76.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 6.50 to a new two-year low of 808.30.

Losers held a 4-3 edge on gainers at the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index dropped .17 to 30.61.

Big Board volume came to 20.23 million shares against 20.52 million in the previous session.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .27 to 114.00.

Bullish Markets Will Come Again

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. My husband is 60. I'm 50. We have about $10,000 in securities. At our ages should we sell out everything and put the money into time deposits?

A. Let's start with declaring that at ages 60 and 50 I don't consider you "over the hill." What you are really asking is: Will stocks ever start climbing again? Or should we put everything into dollars?

I'd be willing to bet that both of you will see bull markets again... even though cash savings have done better than stocks in recent years.

Q. Please compare the four municipal bond trusts I have listed.

A. You name four highly reputable financial firms. I certainly do not intend to list them in any pecking order.

All I can point out to you is that you are listing both fixed unit trusts and mutual funds. The two groups have different operating costs, commissions, goals. The unit trust is a fixed portfolio of municipal bonds designed primarily to yield generous income. The mutuals are managed just as stock funds are and are designed to some extent to keep you in step with the interest rate market.

Be sure you pick the type you want. But all are reputable.

Q. When a married couple deposits money in a savings account all their lives, why should the widow have to pay inheritance taxes on the money?

A. I don't know how the account was set up. I don't know your state's property laws, etc. These things are best settled when the account is set up, with your attorney's help.

Q. How do I go about obtaining a prospectus of a mutual fund?

A. By getting the address of the fund from the Investment Company Institute, 1775 K St., N.W., Washington D.C. 20006, and then asking the fund for it.

Q. We're a young couple interested in a utility company's shares. But there seems to be half a dozen listed.

A. There is only one common share issue, which is basically what a young couple should buy (in hopes of market and dividend appreciation).

Some of the others are straight preferreds, which offer little hope of gain unless interest rates decline, and some are convertible preferreds, which you might consider because any future rise in the common would help these preferreds.

Q. We bought a home which has proven expensive to maintain even though I followed the rule of thumb: one week's pay in cover one month's mortgage costs.

A. That ain't the way I learned it. Your total monthly costs, including mortgage, real estate taxes, water, heat, insurance, repairs should amount to one week's wages.

Q. Could you please tell us about early withdrawal from IRA accounts? Or where we can get that help?

A. The nearest Internal Revenue Service office.

Q. You've mentioned that if one bought six different bond issues — each one paying interest at different semi-annual intervals — one could count on 12 interest checks a year. At about what rate? If one invested only a couple of thousand in each bond would there be a fee for each, or an overall commission?

A. As this is written your yield would be somewhere either side of 8 1/2 percent. There would be a fee for each different issue. You might find that it would be less costly — and also less expensive for safekeeping the bonds — if you put your money into one of the mutual funds specializing in bonds or into some of the bond funds being offered by large, reputable brokerage firms.

Tanker Ban Getting Test In Dearborn

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — This industrial city just west of Detroit says it will begin enforcing an ordinance against double-bottom tank trucks on Thursday despite doubts about its legality.

"We're going to issue a ticket and try it and see if it's legal and if it's legal, then enforce it," said City Attorney William Hultgreen.

"But we just didn't want to twiddle our thumbs like the legislature."

Three persons have been killed and at least nine injured in double-bottom crashes in the Detroit area this year. A bill in the legislature would ban the rigs, and Gov. William M. Milliken has ordered state police to inspect all double-bottom tankers by Nov. 15.

Dearborn's ordinance was passed last Thursday over all company objections that it would raise the price of gasoline and might keep Dearborn stations and Ford Motor Co., Dearborn's largest taxpayer, from getting gasoline.

"Our attorneys are looking at the ordinance. Whether we go to court, no one knows," said Joseph Parisot, manager of the Mobil Oil Co. gasoline terminal in Detroit.

Some local doubts about the ban include the questions of whether it might conflict with state laws, whether a city would or could interfere in such fashion with interstate commerce, and whether Dearborn can prove the tankers are unsafe.

City officials believe the eight double-bottom fuel tanker accidents in Dearborn in the past eight years support their contention the tankers are unsafe.

Parisot said his costs would rise 25 to 35 per cent if he had to use single-bottom rigs and added, "You just couldn't come up with enough drivers even if you had the trucks, which you wouldn't have."

The sponsor of the bill outlawing double-bottom tankers statewide, Rep. Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, called Dearborn's move "an awkward way to do it."

UP A FRACTION

DETROIT (AP) — Consumer prices in the Detroit area rose only 0.1 percent last month, the same increase recorded in August and only one-third the increase for the nation as a whole, the federal government reported.

Off-Farm Taint Cited

DETROIT (AP) — Health problems related to PBB have been found in nonfarm residents of Michigan, sparking concern that more people than first thought may have been exposed to the chemical's harmful effects.

A study to be released at a Michigan State University conference today also found that Michigan residents have had more health problems than Wisconsin residents since 1973, when more than 5,000 pounds of the fire retardant were accidentally mixed with cattle feed, contaminating Michigan's food supply.

"This brings the level of concern one step closer to Michigan's general population," said Dr. Irving J. Selkoff, who directed the year-long survey of 1,025 Michigan residents.

A test group of 102 nonfarm residents who had eaten foods bought directly from farms have as many PBB-related health problems as farm residents, according to the study. In many cases the nonfarm residents were unaware their health had deteriorated.

Among the findings:

— 52 percent of the nonfarm residents, compared to 47 percent of farm residents, had neurological problems such as headaches, blurred vision, dizziness, depression, continual fatigue, changes in perception, nervousness, insomnia, sleepiness, muscle weakness and loss of balance.

— 35 percent of the nonfarm residents, compared to 41 percent of those living on farms, had musculo-skeletal problems such as pain and swelling of joints and pain in the lower back and legs.

— 13 percent of nonfarm residents, compared to 9 percent of the farm residents, had chest problems such as persistent coughing, wheezing and tightness.

— 25 percent of the nonfarm residents, compared to 15 percent of the farm residents, had gastro-intestinal problems, including unexplained weight loss, loss of appetite, nausea, abdominal pains and cramps, diarrhea or constipation.

— 34 percent of the nonfarm residents, compared to 25 percent of the farm residents, had skin problems such as unexplained rashes, acne, increased sensitivity to light, darkening or thickening of the skin, discoloration or deformity of fingernails and toenails, and slow-healing cuts.

The greatest incidence of skin problems, 70 percent, was found among 55 employees of the Michigan Chemical Co., which marketed PBB. Those workers had more health problems than fellow employees since they not only consumed PBB-tainted foods, but also inhaled and touched the chemical on the job.

The study also found abnormal elevations of liver enzymes, which are associated with liver damage, and abnormally high levels of carcinoembryonic antigens, an indicator of potentially cancer-causing agents in the body.

In all, the variety of health problems were "significantly" more prevalent in the 1,029 Michigan residents than in a comparison group of 153 Wisconsin farm residents who have had no PBB exposure, the study found.

Of the 182 Michigan nonfarm residents surveyed, 35 had eaten foods they bought directly from farms not quarantined because of high levels of PBB contamination.

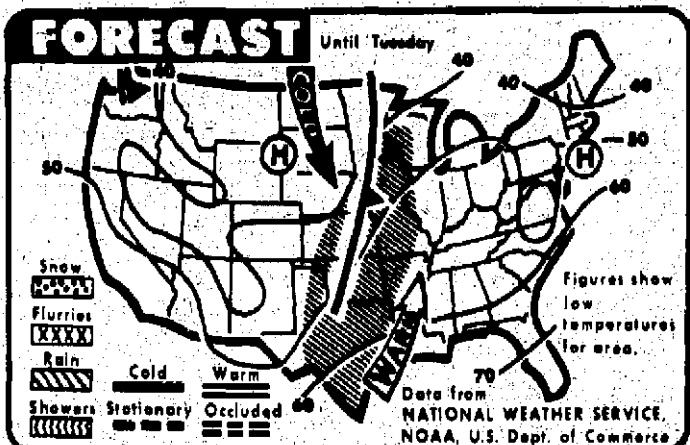

In many cases, the study found, the 35 have more health problems than did the other 67 nonfarm residents, who ate foods purchased from farms later quarantined because of high PBB contamination.

Selkoff said the findings may support a theory that persons exposed to PBB over a period of time may have more PBB-related health problems than persons who receive higher, short-term exposure to the chemical.

Henry Ford Accelerated Soybean Use

DEARBORN — In the late 1920's Henry Ford became interested in finding new industrial uses for farm crops. By 1933, Ford's experimentation resulted in a superior auto enamel made from soybean-oil and a horn button molded from soybean meal.

Through experiments and the publicity he gave them, Ford was responsible to a great extent for the increased use of soybeans in industry, says the Michigan Travel Bureau.

TODAY'S WEATHER MAP: Rain is forecast for most of the central portion of the nation today, ranging from Wisconsin south through the Great Plains and on down to Texas. Studebaker Shutting Down SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The Studebaker offices are finally closing down. That's right — Studebaker.

The automaker's assembly plant and operations here were shut down in 1903, leaving 7,000 Studebaker workers jobless as the company moved operations to Canada.

For awhile, Studebaker maintained busy loan offices to handle pension and insurance claims and sell auto parts. Then the parts business was sold in 1972, and two employees remained behind.

Margery Warren, a 34-year company veteran, is the Studebaker Automotive Sales Corp. office manager. Her assistant is Jane Anderson, a 36-year veteran.

"We plan to rest for awhile," said Miss Warren, who added, "My only regret is that I didn't keep a diary — it's been most interesting."

Miss Warren said mechanics and car buffs across the country still dial the local office for help in locating parts for the Avanti sports car or the stubby Lark, a compact. "Of course we no longer have anything to sell," she said.

Troopers Arrest Two After CB Tip

NEW BUFFALO — Two Chicago men were arrested and charged with burglary tools were seized late Saturday night following a tip from a citizens band radio group, state police here reported.

Booked at the Berrien County Jail, St. Joseph, on charges of possession of burglary tools were Melvin Wilson and Wayne Hickson, both 27, and both of Chicago.

Troopers said the two were taken into custody after a rental van was stopped on Interstate 94, near US-12. The tools, including flashlights, pry bars and heavy-duty hand tools were seized from the truck, police said.

Members of the Wolverine Band C.B. group notified police after seeing a suspicious truck driving near summer cottages in Union Pier. Troopers said the group has been checking summer homes along Lake Michigan in south Berrien County following a rash of break-ins in the past few months.

Fire Violations Ignored

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Beverly Hills Supper Club was told in 1970 to correct some fire code violations but had not done so six years later despite reports to the contrary, it was reported today. Fire swept through the large Midwest night spot in Southgate on May 28, killing 164 persons. The Courier-Journal newspaper reported in a copyrighted story in today's editions that John Bramlage, a deputy fire marshal, has told investigators he visited the club in February 1976 to determine whether construction violations listed on a 1970 memorandum had been corrected. According to the newspaper, Bramlage said he could not remember specific violations uncovered in his 1976 inspection, but said that his inspection report did include some violations that were listed on the 1970 memorandum.

PORK LOINS SMOKED HAMS CANNED HAMS

Some stores charge extra when you get your pork loin, canned or smoked ham cut into slices. Not so at Kroger - we're happy to provide this extra service at no extra cost to you.

One More Reason Why
KROGER MEANS BETTER MEAT

same low price per pound

Do you prefer hamburger that's freshly ground and wrapped right in the store? Or ground and sealed under closely controlled conditions in our meat plant? Take your choice - at Kroger the price is the same.

one more reason why
KROGER MEANS BETTER MEAT

Mixed Pork Chops? At Kroger It's CENTER CUT 2 to 1

Many stores offer packages of "mixed" pork chops in which half or more are end cuts.

But when you buy a package of "Mixed" or "Assorted" pork chops at Kroger, you can count on getting at least TWO of leaner, meatier pork loin center cuts for each end cut.
